Tolerant Mr. Dempsey.
Lindbergh in the Air.
Proud of Her Boy.

JACK DEMPSEY, looking cheerful and as powerful as he ever did, took a tolerant view of Mr. Tunney's dip into Shakespeare, "It's all right, if it helps his racket."

Asked whether he likes the works of Shakespeare, the Manassa Mauler replied, "never had the pleasure."

FLOYD BENNETT, courageous American pilot, is dangerously ill in a Quebec hospital. Double pneumonia is the result of his undertaking, in spite of doctors' warnings, to fly to the assistance of the Bremen crew.

Lindbergh, taking pneumonia serum to his friend, Floyd Bennett, hopped off from Long Island yesterday afternoon as casually as you would walk to the nearest drug store.

THE mother of Captain Wilkins, who flew over the North Pole recently, is "glad my boy George has done what he set out to do. We mothers don't say much, but we feel a lot."

Mrs. Wilkins thinks her son "made more of what he learned in a little country school than many men have been able to make of a college education." He built character in that little school.

The public school is the American school of real opportunity.

HAVE you horses or cows? Ask P. M. Woolley, builder and head of the American Radiator Company, about his development of a vacuum cleaner for horses and cattle.

This writer, after tests, finds that the vacuum process cleans horses and cows to perfection, better, more quickly and economically than could be done by hand.

ALL dust, including the hair is carried into the receptacle by air current. Horse barns and cow stables can be kept in perfect order; production of clean milk made easier by the new method. And grooms no longer are obliged to breathe in dust as they clean the animals. Those that can afford the machine should use it, and in dairies of any size its use should be compulsory—it takes disease-breeding flies with it.

THE German Lufthansa, greatest commercial flying enterprise on earth, intends to build a hydroplane able to land on and start from the roughest water.

Henry Ford has announced his intention to spend at least a million dollars on one airplane, to carry 12 engines, 100 passengers and a machine shop, and to cross the ocean and go on half way around the world without landing at all.

THESE are days of useful, exciting competition. The French Academy of Science announces a new steel infinitely harder than any known hitherto, to be used for automobile and flying machine parts.

Germany announces production of a new metal, 40 per cent lighter than aluminum, strong enough for the manufacture of all metal planes.

AMBASSADOR HOWARD, from Great Britain, says war between his country and America is unthinkable, would ruin and starve millions.

Unfortunately, modern, half-civilized nations, which means all nations on earth, rush into war as savage men rush to fight, without thinking of consequences.

A NATION is always less civilized than the individual citizen, because it is largely controlled by the mob spirit.

Individuals free their slaves, pension old workers, and provide for poor children long before nations do those things.

THE able Lord Birkenhead, only recently is alleged to have proposed that Britain, France and Germany, unite to "clean up" Russia's Bolshevik government. Stresemann declined the idea for Germany, according to Lincoln Eyre.

A great German industrialist, however, says frankly, "military action against the Bolshevik, in my opinion, has become imperative, on purely financial grounds."

THE Judge Gary art auction realized $2,297,763, a record. It sounds big, but at least one American collector spends as much as that, on art and antiques, every year.

One Gary rug, an Ispahan, sold for $106,000. Perhaps that was the rug Mrs. Gary's butler had in mind when he asked a young man eating a hard boiled egg, with some abandon, please do look out for the rug, "quite expensive, sir."

LOIS HENRY

It's tough, thinks Lois, on the "Bernards," this marathon stuff. Lois' mother is her trainer and manager.

IF ONLY MOVIES

Harry L. Stoner and Dot Jordan (left) and Michael J. Tanskie and Carolyn Corbett read their Sun-Teles as they dance, as most of the others do. If they could only have movies, too!

"NOT SO HARD!"

Nellie Spade, partner of Leon Brady (right), has a "bum spaniel," too. But Nellie's lucky, she says, because once each hour she can coast into the pit and have Joey Reynolds (the industrious-looking fellow) make some adjustments.

BACK TO AMBRIDGE

Now Joseph Paliane and Margaret Shiller are ready to go home—and, of course, to their beds. It seems as though they've lost this race.

Fifteen couples were left on the floor at Motor Square Garden at 3 p. m. today, 42 hours after the beginning of the national dance marathon.

Twenty-three couples had dropped out since 3 p. m. Tuesday, an average of more than one each hour. Those that remained shuffled about the big floor, bleary-eyed, to the tune of a raucous phonograph.

More than 500 spectators lined the ropes about the dance floor, many of them having "stoodby" during the long night. Many of them were friends of the contestants, while others apparently were doing an endurance stretch themselves.

When the day and a half period ended at 9 a. m. 34 couples had dropped out, half of them since 11:30 Tuesday night. At 3 o'clock today no further eliminations had taken place. A total of 52 couples were registered. The seventeenth couple to quit was Charles W. Sarricks, 13 Scott place, and Susanne Adams, 4324 Forbes street. They left the floor at 11:30 Tuesday night.

The 15 couples still dancing at 3 o'clock were Albert Bonach and Cora Dean, Tony Coda and Dolores Stoller, Stanley Solick and Babe Miller, Harry L. Stoner and Dorothy Jordan, Edward J. Leonard and Marianna Jacques, Tony Phillips and Teeny Neiman, Leon Brady and Nell Spade, John Capello and Stella Capello, Edward J. McGovern and Sue Bodner, Tony Burke and Sally Bennett, James V. Pedrow and Margaret Betz, Michael J. Tanskie and Carolyn Colbert, James Wallace and Lois Henry, Fred Martino and Maria Farnan, George Rihn and Vera Humbertson.

EIGHT QUIT AT MIDNIGHT

Four couples failed to return after midnight rest period. They were: James E. Schaffer, Philadelphia, and Helen Smith, 2421 Penn avenue, James Clark, 108 Sarah street, Knoxville, and Ethel Chettle, 3629 Brownsville road; James Cartonia, 937 Robinson street, McKees Rocks, and Mary Kolas, 1323 War street, South Side, and Monte Lippincott and Kittie Monroe. They had danced 27 hours and 15 minutes.

At 12:45 Louis Trindo, 10 Covington street and Isabella Spade, 2417 Charles street, North Side, quit after dancing 27 hours, 34 minutes. An hour later Tony Mangani, 141 Auburn street and Florence Stanley, 515 Lockhart street, the first couple to register for the marathon, quit. At 2:56 Joseph Sayles, 603 Grant street, runner-up in a recent

SHOOTS 3 AND SELF

DONORA, Pa., April 25.—A young Italian shot his wife and her parents here today and then turned the gun on himself. John Lasus, 50, the father-in-law, is dead. The others are expected to die.

The shooting occurred in Lasus' home after John Fanscali, 20, had followed his estranged wife to Monongahela City and insisted she return to him. They returned to the home of her parents to discuss it. An argument and the shooting followed.

Gertrude, 5, daughter of the couple, was playing in the yard. Her screams, when she came into the kitchen and found her grandfather dead, her grandmother and mother unconscious and all lying in pools of blood, awakened an uncle, Leo Lasus, 28.

FRANK LOCKHART

Frank Lockhart, American speed king, was almost instantly killed today in his Stutz Blackhawk at a speed of more than 200 miles per hour. He hit a "soft spot" on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., on his fourth effort today to break the record of 207.55 miles per hour set Sunday by Ray Keech.

Mellon-Reed Slates Make Clean Sweep With Possible Exception of Haddock Victory.

A complete Republican organization victory at the primary election was clouded by a neck-and-neck contest for Republican national delegate from the Thirty-sixth District. Late returns show Miles Bryan, McKees Rocks leader, nosing ahead of former Sheriff William S. Haddock, of Dormont.

Otherwise the organization candidates triumphed by assured margins, decisive in most contests, with nearly complete returns in many districts. In the outstanding congressional fight Congressman Harry A. Estep defeated former Congressman James M. Magee by a majority of about 8,000 in the Thirty-fifth District.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 25.—Al Smith partisans claimed seven of the eight delegates-at-large to the Democratic national convention and a substantial majority of the 76 delegates from Pennsylvania on the face of incomplete unofficial primary returns available here today.

John A. McSparre was the only known anti-Smith candidate with a chance to make the delegate-at-large slate. He was running eighth with 20,241 votes.

The entire administration Republican slate, headed by United States Senator David A. Reed, and for the most part unopposed, was nominated, while Secretary of Treasury Andrew W. Mellon headed the list of seven Republican delegates-at-large chosen to go to Kansas City. The Democratic organization slate was unopposed.

Unofficial returns from all but a few districts presaged the defeat of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot for the Republican nomination as Representative in the Fifteenth Congressional district.

Election in Three States Strengthen Hands of Hoover And Smith for President.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP.)—To all appearances, the voting in the Ohio, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts primaries of yesterday has strengthened the hands of Secretary Hoover and Governor Smith of New York, as contenders for the Republican and Democratic presidential nominations.

Hoover, in the face of a bitter contest, captured 31 of the 51 delegates from Ohio. His managers claim he will have the support at Kansas City of more than a score of Massachusetts' delegation of 39. They hope, on the showdown, to land the 79 uninstructed delegates from Pennsylvania, who will be headed by Secretary Mellon.

From the Smith camp comes the prediction that at Houston the New

QUEBEC, Que., April 25.—Floyd Bennett, internationally famous aviator and conqueror of the North Pole, died at 10:53 this morning in the Jeffrey Hale Hospital, of pneumonia, which he had contracted in the line of duty.

Bennett was 38 years old. He was born at Lake George, N. Y., on October 25, 1890, and his present home was in Brooklyn, N. Y.

He was one of the most courageous aviators whose name has been written indelibly in the annals of aviation progress. His greatest achievement was when, as co-pilot for Commander Richard E. Byrd, in 1926, he flew to the North Pole—the first time this epic feat had been accomplished.

DIED GOING TO RESCUE

Bennett's death was hastened by his fidelity to duty. He was ill when he left Detroit several days ago in the Ford rescue plane which was bringing replacements for the trans-Atlantic Bremen which was forced

LOCKHART IS KILLED IN SPILL

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 25.—Frank Lockhart, one of the world's most famous racing drivers, was fatally injured here shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, when his car somersaulted as he was making an attempt to break the world's speed record.

Lockhart was thrown clear of the Stutz Blackhawk as it turned over the first time, but received injuries from which he died shortly after reaching the hospital.

It was at first believed that the light construction of the front part of his car caused it to "lift" with the powerful rush of wind beneath it, but examination of the car, which was almost demolished, proved that a rear left tire had blown out.

SPEED 203 MILES

Lockhart had gone south on the smooth beach at an estimated speed of about 203 miles an hour, the best time he had recorded in any of his attempts on the record—207 miles an hour—and had started back on the north run when the accident occurred in front of the grandstand.

The terrific speed at which Lockhart was driving is evidenced by the fact that his car leaped high in the air five times, attaining a height of 25 feet, and throwing Lockhart 50 feet skyward in the second jump.

Holding his position until the careening car was almost upon him, Ludwig Geiskop, a cameraman, escaped death by an inch, and his camera was demolished. Directly behind him was Max Amsorge, a local photographer, who was knocked down and slightly injured.

An electrician stationed at one of the timing traps had his shirt sleeve torn as the Stutz made its last leap toward destruction.

Mrs. Lockhart, whose car was within two feet of the Stutz as it passed, maintained her self-control and was one of the first at her husband's side.

Last February Lockhart survived a similar accident here, when the car he was driving dived into the ocean and somersaulted. He was rescued by another racing driver, who went into the water after him.

Yesterday he made six trials, but the highest speed he could attain was 191 miles an hour. He was confident he would break the record in today's attempt.

Lieut.-Col. Don Caldwell is in charge of Ohio National Guardsmen at St. Clairsville.

ENCAMPMENT

The unit of guardsmen, sent into the mine trouble belt by Gov. Vic Donahey, is encamped on the fair grounds. Apparently guarding against trouble, the soldiers, strangely enough, are acting as a relief agency for poverty-stricken mine families, a contrast to their usual duties.

SHOW OF ARMS

There was a "show of arms" when the guardsmen, a few at a time, dribbled into St. Clairsville. But it was only a "show." They will, of course, preserve order at all costs, but they are making their job a humanitarian one. Seventeen kitchens in 16 locations have been set up—far too many to feed a handful of soldiers!

CLOTHES

Clothes are given the poor as well as food. School teachers report undernourished children to the soldiers and their wants are satisfied. The children—and only those grown-ups who actually need food—are fed at the kitchens, perhaps because some children's parents are careless about feeding them.

THEY GAIN

These shelves empty constantly. More than 60,000 meals have been served, it is estimated, and children in 10 days averaged four pounds weight gain. Yet official Ohio insists, modestly, its guardsmen are in a "warring" district.

OPERATORS FACE RUIN

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Inequitable freight rates, which give West Virginia and Kentucky coal operators an immense advantage over their competitors in the Pittsburgh and Eastern Ohio districts, have brought the latter to the verge of ruin, H. L. Findlay, of Cleveland, O., vice president of the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company, told the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate today, in its investigation of the coal strike.

He told the committee that some of the southern operators were charged by the railroads only four or five mills per ton-mile on coal shipped to the Great Lakes, while Pittsburgh and Ohio coal companies had to pay at the rate of between nine and ten mills per ton-mile. As a result of this discrimination in favor of the southerners, Findlay stated, Pennsylvania's coal production has decreased 42,774,217 tons per year in the last 14 years, and Ohio's has decreased 21,552,527 tons, while in the same period West Virginia's annual output has increased 80,425,864 tons, and Kentucky's 52,009,480 tons.

Findlay told the committee that one factor which contributed to over-production of coal was the superior efficiency of the railroads as compared with conditions that prevailed up until a year or two after the World War.

Findlay said that if car shortages occurred as they formerly did, and the carriers were as slow as they formerly were in moving coal, there would be no over-production of coal.

Findlay suggested that it would contribute to the relief of the distress in the coal industry if Congress would authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission to direct all railroads to refuse to bill or handle coal moving in interstate commerce which is not consigned to a bonafide consumer of coal.

Senator Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, acting chairman of the Senate committee, paid close attention to the freight rate figures cited by Findlay, and at one point in the recital interjected.

"Either you are paying too much or the Southern people are paying too little. There can be no doubt about that. If you are going to stay in the coal business in Ohio you have to get some of your markets back."

E. L. Greever, attorney for the West Virginia and Kentucky coal operators in the lake cargo rate litigation, was present and listened attentively to the discussion, occasionally taking notes.

Senator Gooding, discussing the West Virginian's victory over the Pittsburghers and Ohians in the Lake cargo rate fight, remarked to Findlay:

"They have outtalked you; that's all." "Yes, they were more clever than we were in disseminating propaganda," said Findlay.

"You have clever people in Ohio," remarked Guy D. Goff of West Virginia.

"I have made some study of this rate matter," continued Senator Gooding, addressing Findlay," and I am sure you are right about it, although the Senator from West Virginia will not agree."

"I don't want any invidious distinctions or any favors," said Senator Goff, "We have not outtalked you, but have fought just as strenuously."

"I predict," said Findlay, "that this attitude of the West Virginians will bring a disastrous situation more far-reaching than any one here can see. For example: One big consumer in Cleveland is getting coal from West Virginia, having it carried by rail to Toledo and then brought from Toledo to Cleveland by water. This is going to break down all rail rates and there is no telling where it will end."

A little later Findlay remarked that the Southerners' propaganda as to the evils that would result from a change in rates in favor of the Northerners was "all apple sauce."

"They don't know what they are talking about," said Greever, attorney for the Southern operators, in a tone of heavy sarcasm.

Findlay blamed the Northern railroads for lack of sympathy with the Pittsburgh and Ohio operators.

The Southern roads, he said, "stuck like glue" to the coal operators in their territory in the rate fight. The Northern roads, he asserted, were indifferent to the plight of their customers.

"If we had had the same cooperation from our Northern carriers," said Findlay, "as the Southerners had from their roads, we would not have this situation."

"That's the story," remarked Senator Gooding.

Findlay asserted, and Senator Gooding agreed with him, that if the injunction obtained by the Southern operators, restraining the Interstate Commerce Committee from enforcing its recent rate order in favor of the Northerners, should be finally sustained by the United States Supreme Court, it would practically deprive the Interstate Commerce Commission of its rate-making power.

Senator Goff asked Findlay:

"Do you think there is any commercial charity in our civilization today, as there is in our social relations?"

Findlay said there was not.

Findlay was cross-examined by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, when the hearing was resumed after the mid-day recess. The miners' chieftain questioned the witness as to the railroad's practice in buying coal.

Findlay admitted some coal had been sold by the Youghiogheny and Ohio Company to the railroads at less than the cost of production, but said the carriers had treated the company liberally on the whole, and it would be much worse off if it were not for the help it received from them.

Shakespeare or Tunney Wrong, Will's Theory

CHICAGO, Ill., April 25.—Gene Tunney just lectured before Yale's class on Shakespeare. He said he read Shakespeare ten times before he could get what he meant. Now that brings up the question: Is there something wrong with Shakespeare or with Gene? If everybody has to read his stuff ten times, why Shakespeare is not the author he is cracked up to be. But if somebody else can read him and get him the first time why Tunney is not the highbrow that he is cracked up to be. So read my stuff at least ten times, and if you can't get it, why you are neither a Shakespeare or a Tunney. Yours for simpler authors and harder hitting fighters,

6 PLEAD TO VOTE GUILT

The sweeping campaign against election frauds at the September primary assumed the proportions of a rout today. Following the disposal of three additional election boards by pleas entered in Criminal Court, the prediction was voiced from a reliable source that a "parade" of election boards will be organized in court this week that may dispose of the bulk of the remainder of 40 election boards, comprising 200 election officials indicted.

Following the entry of no defense pleas today by six officials of three boards, the April grand jury at its concluding session indicted the members of the board of the Twenty-second District of the Eighth Ward. This board has been accused of giving one of the worst examples of election cheating at the September primary, and disclosures of its actions have been termed startling by the prosecutors. It is alleged that 359 instances of erasures were found when ballots were examined by the recount board and that of a registration of 264 there were 257 votes cast although only 253 names appeared on the voters' list, erasures appearing on 263 ballots. Action was postponed by a previous grand jury, arousing inquiry and comment.

The rigorous prosecution last week by First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Assistant Roy T. Clunk, disposing of four cases by pleas and convictions, is responsible for the pleas entered by six officials today and the reports of the promised "parade."

The six, all members of election boards, were: Second district, Twenty-fifth ward, William Bulger and James Coyne; Thirty-second district, Fifth ward S. L. Ostrosky, Isadore Schaffer and Edward Brown; Twelfth district, Fifth ward, Morris Gordon.

The pleas came just before the 15 members of the three boards involved were scheduled to go on trial and just after a conference between Rody P. Marshall, counsel for the defense, and Assistant District Attorneys Earle Jackson and George F. P. Langfitt.

The charges against the remaining nine defendants are expected to be dropped next Monday, the day when Judge Harry H. Rowand announced he would pronounce sentence on the six pleaders. These nine are: Second District, Twenty-fifth Ward, Neal Driscoll, Ruth Haggerty, Emma Mangan. Thirty-second District, Fifth Ward, Dan Cox and Dan Karo. Twelfth District, Fifth Ward, Hattie Monroe, Jennie Murdock, Hannah Jackson and William Hubbard.

The one count on which the six defendants pleaded was negligently performing the duties of an election officer.

lative District, was easily won by Miss Helen Grimes, incumbent, from Mrs. Sarah L. Gardner, supported by Government League. trict Attorney M. A. Musmanno supported Representative Frank

All items of the city bond issue were overwhelmingly approved.

The Mellon leadership in Allegheny county supporting the 79 uninstructed delegates to the Kansas City convention, including seven delegates at large, was given full support with the exception of the Haddock threat. The state ticket, led by United States Senator David A. Reed, was overwhelmingly nominated.

Annexation of Hays borough to Pittsburgh was approved by a two-to-one vote of the borough voters, terminating a battle between Council and Burgess Walter Adams.

The primary was featured by a light vote, due in many districts to the absence of contests and to a small degree to the inclement weather during many of the voting hours. There was a minimum of disturbance and it was manifest that the election was honestly conducted and the ballots honestly counted as the result of the sweeping prosecution of election irregularities at the September primary.

In a number of election districts difficulty was found in finding a complete personnel for election boards, 328 electors in the Fourteenth District of the Twenty-first Ward being disfranchised by failure to obtain a board as a result of the conviction last week of four members of the board. Numerous requests came to Common Pleas Court and the County Commissioners' office from election officials for advice.

Haddock, a Hoover supporter, gave Bryan and Mayor James S. Crawford, of Duquesne, a battle in many sections of the district. With 29 out of 316 districts missing, the count was: Crawford, 15,779; Haddock, 12,760, and Bryan, 12,659.

In the Thirty-fifth District 262 out of 287 districts gave Estep 21,407 and Magee 13,447.

Legislative contests in the Fifth, Ninth, Tenth and Twelfth districts found organization candidates with good leads. Representative John S. Purucker in the Fifth was far in front with nearly complete returns over Garnet R. Speer, formerly representative in the Twelfth District, and Attorney Jacob Shulgold. With 87 out of 94 districts in, the vote was: Purucker, 4,198; Shulgold, 3,221, and Speer, 3,122.

In the Tenth District, 173 out of 205 districts gave incumbents the four places with these totals: James H. McClure 9,611, Frank J. Riddle 9,042, Arthur Storer 8,9[illegible] and Carl C. Baldridge 7,115. Dr. Benjamin H. Patterson, of Wilkinsburg, who was retired from the Legislature two years ago, offered the only fight in the district, with 6,068 votes in 196 districts.

In the Tenth legislative district, 195 districts out of 219 gave the four organization candidates the following vote: Matthew A. Dunn 11,341, Dr. Joseph G. Steedle 9,308, Miss Grimes 8,685 and Musmanno 8,662. The Good Government candidates in these districts have: Mrs. Gardner 6,332, former Representative W. H. Prosser 6,320, George J. Churchill 5,996 and Evans 5,885.

ONLY TWO CHANGES

With Musmanno entering the Allegheny county delegation in the Legislature, the only other change in the delegation of 27 is in the Eleventh District, where Frank Hoffman takes the place of C. J. McBride, resigned.

A spirited legislative fight in the Ninth District, centering on McKeesport, was won by Representative John A. Rhodes, opposed by James A. Fulton, an independent. With practically all districts in, Rhodes had a lead of 920 votes out of a total vote of about 5,500. In the Fourth Legislative District Representative Edward B. Gochring was polling a vote of about four to one over Louis Kable, an independent. In the Sixth District Representatives William T Bell, George H. Soffel nd Clayton A. Dietrich were well out in front of several opponents, with a number of districts to be heard from.

The only other battle against the organization slate of Republican delegates was that in the Thirty-fifth District, with two independent candidates well in the rear. Mayor Charles H. Kline had 20,810 votes and George H. Flinn 17,364 in 261 out of 287 districts, with Attorney George P. Kountz, pledged to Hoover, having 10,060 and O. H. Friedman 6,208.

State Senator James J. Coyne in the Forty third District, and Senator Frank J. Harris in the Forty fifth were unopposed.

The only change in the Congressional delegation from Allegheny county was the substitution of Alderman Patrick J. Sullivan for Congressman John M. Morin, who declined to oppose the Sixth ward leader. Congressmen renominated were: Thirty-second, Stephen G. Porter; Thirty-third, Clyde Kelly, and Thirty-eighth, Guy E. Campbell, in addition to Estep.

An organization fight in the Thirteenth ward was apparently won by insurgents, partial return showing that Ward Chairman Charles A. Hillegas was defeated by Scott Morgan. District committee members supported by the Morgan-Heron faction were elected.

Cleveland Manager Wins

CLEVELAND, April 25.—(INS.)—For the second time within six months, Cleveland Tuesday voted to retain the present city manager form of government, defeating the Harry Davis charter amendment, which called for a return to the mayoralty system in 1929, by a majority of 2,763.

The complete vote on the amendment showed that the present city government under the managership plan was retained with 43,798 votes registered against the amendment and 41,035 for it.

Cleveland is the largest city in the country governer by a city manager.

IN ARMY PURSUIT PLANE

This photo shows Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's hop-off for Quebec with the precious anti-pneumonia serum expected to save the life of Floyd Bennett, pilot, who fell seriously ill attempting to succor the stranded Bremen at Greenley Island. Lindy left New York on a moment's notice and telephoned permission from Washington granted him the use of the fastest available plane, an Army pursuit ship, capable of 150 miles per hour. Lindy reached Quebec with the precious basket shown above, 500 miles from New York, in less than four hours.

Wilkins' Rescuers Sail

LONDON, April 25.—(AP.)—The steamship Mina was headed for the ice bound waters off Green harbor, Spitzbergen, today to bring Capt. George H. Wilkins to Europe. The ship was ordered to approach as near Green Harbor as possible and take on Captain Wilkins and Carl B. Eielson and the airplane in which they flew across unexplored polar regions.

The ship, owned by the Northern Exploration Company, was at Honningsvaag, Finmark, Norway, when sailing orders were received. It was expected to reach the mouth of Isfjord (Ice Fiord), Spitzbergen, on which Green Harbor is located, about Saturday. It was hoped that the fliers would be brought to Tromsoe, Norway, early next week.

Indications were that as soon as possible Wilkins would begin active preparations for a flight to the South Polar regions. He has already drawn up a tentative program for exploration in the unknown regions of the Antarctic and hopes to start for there about the beginning of September.

CARNEGIE ESTABLISHES BRASHEAR SCHOLARSHIP

As a tribute to the memory of Dr. John Alfred Brashear, a new scholarship, to be know as the "John Alfred Brashear Scholarship," has been established by the trustees of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, it is announced. It is valued at $300, the tuition fee for a year, and will be available in the coming college year to a student in a high or preparatory school outside of Allegheny county.

NICARAGUA REBELS KILL U. S. CITIZEN

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 25.—(AP.)—With one American mine executive stated to have been slain by rebels, grave fears were held today for the safety of any other foreigners who might have fallen into the clutches of Gen. Augustino Sandino and his followers. Four mines in the Pis Pis region were in the hands of insurgents.

Clifford D. Ham, collector general customs, received a radio message from W. J. Crampton, collector of customs at Puerto Cabezas, saying that George B. Marshall of New York, assistant manager of the La Luz Y Los Angeles mine, had been killed.

Crampton also reported the seizure of Bonanza, Neptune and Lone Star mines. The Americans at the Lone Star and Neptune mines escaped from the rebels and fled to Puerto Cabezas.

The rebels immediately made preparations to resist any attack by American Marines.

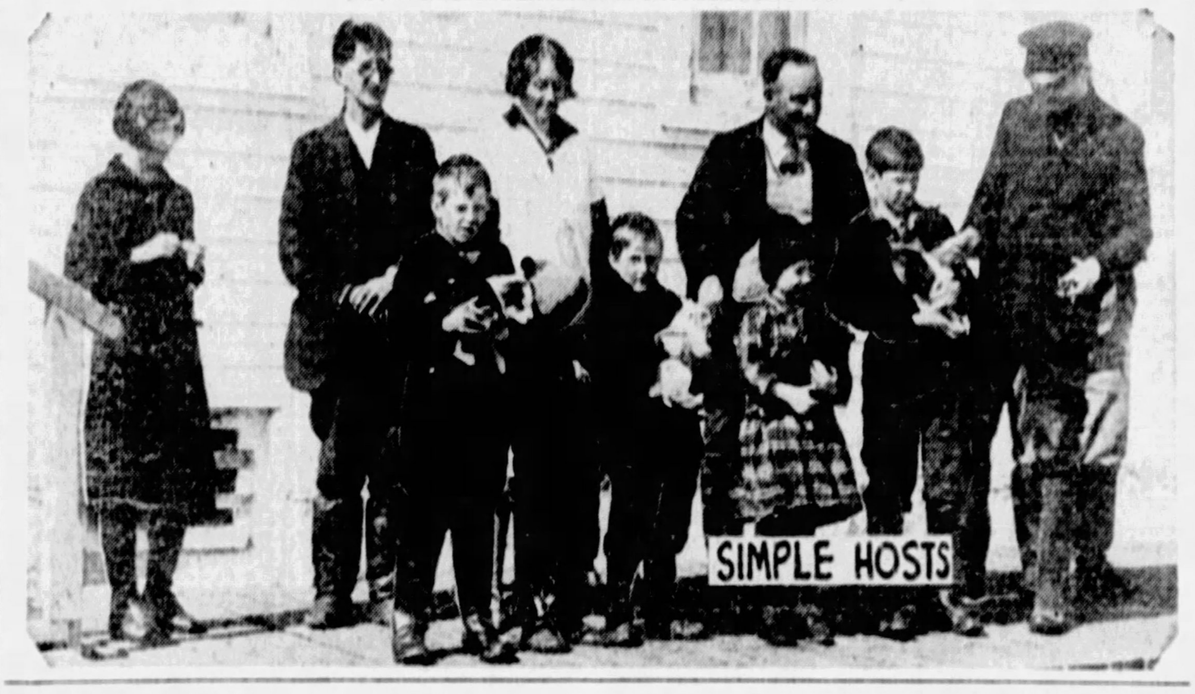
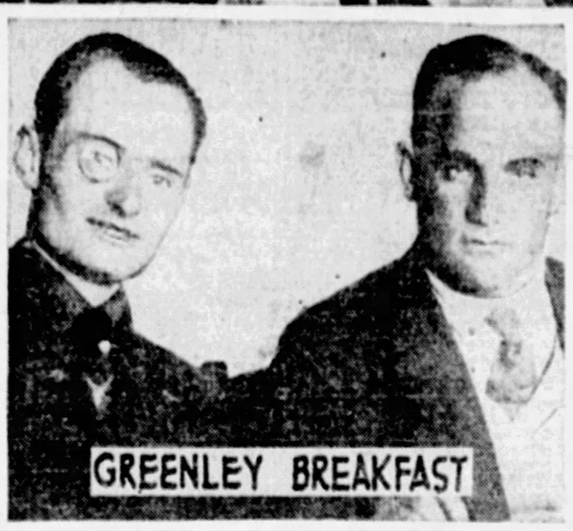
BREMEN HOPS TODAY

CREW SAYS AGAIN.



THE DAILY PICTORIAL — THE SUN TELEGRAPH — GENERAL NEWS SECTION

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25, 1928



NEW YORK RUSHES PREPARATIONS

Once again the crew of the Bremen announces through its "spokesman," Herta Junkers, that the ship will hop today for Lake St. Agnes, Murray Bay, Canada, on its way to waiting New York, expecting to arrive tomorrow afternoon. Difficulties many have beset the trans-Atlantic ship in getting supplies and parts and relief to its marooned crew at Greenley, but the big Ford relief ship, whose pilot, Floyd Bennett, is dead of pneumonia brought on by his flight, has reached Greenley and helped renovate the Junkers. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, "for a fellow flier," flew madly into Quebec with serum for Bennett, and Clarence Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flier, "to return Germany's hospitality," waits at Murray Bay to guide the Bremen into New York. In the meantime, Fitzmaurice has joined his mates, Huenefeld and Koehl, guests of the simple lighthouse Letempier family.

Coal Seminar Brings Clash

Gotham Waits

FACTIONS HALTED BY GAG RULE

Controversy and confusion marked the closing hour of the ministerial coal seminar in the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church today when questions were flung at speakers for the two factions of the United Mine Workers of America. When Joseph H. Vichestain, editor of the "National Labor Tribune," a paper opposing the union, rose to ask a question, P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5 of the union, inquired:

"I wonder if the clergymen present know who this man really is?"

Fagan undertook to give his own description of Vichestain, and was instantly muzzled by the Rev. Dr. Hubert C. Herring, chairman.

Powers Hapgood, Yale graduate and member of the National "Save-the-Union" Committee, who fired another question, was referred to by Fagan "as this disgruntled member of the union," and again the gag was applied amid an outburst from the floor.

"You can't call people names," the chairman cautioned. "We are here to learn the facts and not to engage in controversies between two elements of the union."

Widely different suggestions for the stabilization of the coal industry were offered by Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and John Brophy, leader of the insurgents, the "Save the Union" committee.

Murray suggested consolidation of independent operators for collective bargaining with the union; the setting up of a marketing, pooling and distributing agencies under a government commission, the universal acknowledgement of the six-hour day and five-day week and the abolishment of misuse of injunctions by coal companies.

Brophy pointed out his reasons for condemning consolidation and government regulation and insisted that nationalization of the mining industry was the only solution. He said this could be brought about through government purchase rather than confiscation and cited a number of reasons in support of this plan.

Stark misery flaunted itself before the Coal Seminar yesterday afternoon.

And some forty or more ministers from all parts of the country expressed surprise that such conditions existed near the greatest industrial center in the world.

The ministers heard tales of suffering and hardship from the lips of the striking miners and their families, they were eye witnesses to the squalor and misery in union and non-union camps at Castle Shannon, Mollenauer and Curry; they visited an 82-year-old woman on her death bed; heard a mother plead for medical attention for her sickly son in the rickety frame barracks and experienced many other deplorable things that will long remain in their minds.

2 Bandits Stick Up Diner

Two "green roadster" bandits, in quest of slot machines, held up the restaurant of James Maclucci, 2015 Penn avenue, at 7 o'clock this morning, ignored the cash register and fled after taking $30 from a customer.

Melburn Shill, of 61 Washington road, was relieved of his cash. The robbers did not molest Maclucci, the only other person in the restaurant. They then ran out, climbed into their emerald roadster and sped toward downtown.

Police blame the pair for half a dozen thefts of slot machines in the last several months. They place the machines in a rumble seat of their car in making their getaway, police say. The slot machines are resold at from $100 to $250.

MAX LESLIE'S BROTHER DIES

Millard F. Leslie, 78, of 1702 Chislett street, brother of State Senator Max G. Leslie, died at 8:50 o'clock this morning in the Homeopathic Hospital of pneumonia. It was reported pneumonia developed after Mr. Leslie punctured a lung on April 20, when he fell down a flight of stairs.

He leaves his widow; two sons, Dr. Edward Leslie and Homer E. Leslie, and two brothers, State Senator Leslie and A. H. Leslie.

KENNEY HEADS CRUCIBLE

3 STATE PRIMARIES STRENGHTEN HOOVER, SMITH

York Governor will have the Massachusetts delegation with 36 votes back of him to a man, will have the support of all but a few of Pennsylvania's 76 delegate votes, and before the balloting is over will receive the votes of at least 40 of the 48 delegates representing Ohio.

Smith made no bid for the Ohio delegation, which, with the possible exception of one man, will line up for former Senator Atlee Pomerene, on the first ballot. One candidate for delegate, a lawyer committed to Smith, succeeded in beating the organization slate in the Columbus district and can be counted on to support the New Yorker from the outset.

In the preferential voting in Ohio, Smith ran far ahead. No names were listed on the ballot, but of those written in, the Governor, on the incomplete count early today, had twice as many as the entire field combined. Included in that group were Pomerene, Gov. Donahey, who is not an active presidential candidate, and Reed of Missouri, a native of Ohio.

Hoover also ran away with the preferential vote in Ohio, forging far ahead of the late Senator Willis, who received many votes despite his recent death. The names of both were on the ballot. Those of Dawes and Lowden were not, but several thousand Republicans wrote them in.

RESULT NOT BINDING

The preferential result under Ohio laws is not binding on delegates. Neither is it in Massachusetts, where Hoover and Smith romped away with the vote, cast under a new state law, which enabled voters to write in the names of their favorites. Friends of President Coolidge in his home state had planned to roll up a preferential vote for him at the polls, but last week he squelched that move. Despite that, several thousands of his supporters wrote in his name.

Among the Bay State Republicans who will go to Kansas City as delegates at large are Chairman Butler, of the Republican National Committee, close friend of the President; Senator Gillett and former Governor Cox, regarded as a Dawes man at heart. One of the Democratic delegates at large from Massachusetts will be Senator David I. Walsh, a staunch supporter of Gov. Smith. The Rev. Frederick L. Anderson, a Baptist, unsuccessfully sought election as a Republican delegate at large from Massachusetts as a supporter of Hoover and an advocate of strict prohibition enforcement. In the Democratic primary, Mayor Quigley, of Chelsea, who created a stir at the Madison Square Garden convention four years ago by his frequent demands to be heard from the floor, also failed to get on as delegate at large.

In Pennsylvania no candidate in either major party sought the preference vote. Incomplete returns showed six Smith men and two anti-Smith candidates leading for the eight places on the delegation-at-large, each to have half a vote in the convention. The Republican organization slate was ratified without opposition.

While votes were being cast in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts yesterday, Alaskans in a primary were determining their national convention representatives with a Smith slate of six delegates unopposed and five Republicans seeking two places on the Republican delegation.

In Kansas the Democrats in convention instructed their delegation of 20 to support Representative Ayres, the only Democrat from Kansas in Congress, for the presidency. Adherents of Senator Reed, of Missouri, had told plans to capture the delegation and there were indications that some of the Smith followers aided the Ayres "favorite son" movement.

HOOVER GIVES UP OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma Republicans in convention rounded out their delegation of 20, with a Curtis-Lowden coalition holding the whip-hand. Hoover supporters say they see little chance of getting much support from Oklahoma delegates.

The Republican state convention in Michigan is on today's calendar, with Hoover, as a result of carrying the recent preferential primary, certain to get the 33 delegates from that state. That block, with 31 from Ohio, will raise his conceded total of delegates already selected up to 183, with Lowden as runner-up having 175. Neither total takes into account the possible lineup of the delegates named yesterday in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma or Alaska, many of whom the Hoover forces are claiming.

As for Smith, he had 311 conceded prior to yesterday. A solid delegation from Massachusetts and the 60 odd his supporters claim from Pennsylvania

HISTORIANS RENAME STEVENSON 18TH TIME

At the annual election of officers of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania last night William H. Stevenson was re-elected president for the eighteenth consecutive year. The other officers are Omar S. Decker, Gen. Albert J. Logan and Albert A. Horne, vice presidents; John E. Potter, treasurer; Maj. R. M. Ewing, secretary, and Thomas S. Brown, Robert Garland, James H. Henderson and Benjamin Thaw, directors.

Papers were read by H. K. Sicheneck and Mrs. Elvert M. Davis. At the May meeting the three leading students in the department of history of the University of Pittsburgh will read papers on the early history of Western Pennsylvania.

30 INDUSTRIES JOIN IN AD EXHIBIT

Widespread interest is being attracted by the fourth annual advertising exhibition in progress in the commercial engineering department of Carnegie Institute of Technology. Thirty industries of Pittsburgh and vicinity have combined in arranging the exhibit, which is in charge of Prof. George H. Follows, teacher of commercial engineering.

Of particular interest is a coal exhibit. One hundred pounds of raw coal, along with numerous products and bi-products, are on display. An exhibition of chinaware is also being closely studied. The complete process in the making of delicate ware, from the raw material to the finished product, is shown.

A complete study of various kinds of gas meters and regulators is also on display and a large array of newspaper advertising. Most of the other industries responsible for the exhibit have something of interest in the way of advertising on display. The exhibition will be open to the public until Friday of next week.

ARREST TWO AS AUTO VANDALS

Accused of stripping automobiles in the rear of the Keystone Buick Company at Baum boulevard and St. Clair street, James Wilson, 30, of 1914 Forbes street, and Patrick Farrell, 21, of 2026 Tustin street, were arrested early today. James Lance, a night watchman at the automobile company telephoned police when he is alleged to have seen the men in the rear of the building, where a score of automobiles had been parked. The two are being held in the Frankstown Avenue Police Station on suspicious person charges.

Grandmother finds way to grow old gracefully

"I don't try to keep up the pace of the younger generation," says this 65-year-old woman. "I leave that to my grandchildren.

"But just because I lead a quiet life doesn't mean that I'm not perfectly well. I never felt better. Everything about me is normal and functions as it should. I make sure of that by taking Nujol regularly. Nujol keeps me in good condition."

When people become less active, Nujol becomes even more important for good health. For Nujol not only prevents the excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal.

All of us—old and young alike—lead more or less sedentary lives. But Nujol helps make up for this lack of exercise. It keeps the body functioning as Nature intended.

Even if you think you're perfectly well, try Nujol. It was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Take it for three months and just see if you don't feel better. Nujol can't possibly upset you. It contains absolutely no drugs or medicine. Be sure you get the genuine.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE National Grand Opera ensemble, under the direction of Cesare Sodero, will present, in tabloid form, Vincenzo Bellini's opera, "Norma," over WCAE and other Red Network stations at 10:30 o'clock tonight. This opera was produced in Milan in 1831. Its first New York production took place in 1854. The story of the opera is laid in Gaul, about 50 B. C.

Songs of the sea, including a group of old-time chanteys, will be sung by the Sylvania Foresters over KDKA and other Red Network stations at 8:30 o'clock. Among the numbers will be "Rolling Down to Rio," one of the vanishing songs of the deep-water men, a group of more familiar chanteys, and "A Life on the Ocean Wave."

Variety hour will be heard over KDKA at 9 o'clock. Joe Green's marimba band and instrumental and vocal soloists will be featured. Mac Robinson, soprano, will sing "A Bowl of Roses," George O'Brien, tenor, "In an Old Fashioned Town," Ivy Scott, soprano, "Chick, Chick, Chick," and John Oakley, bass, will render "Stonecracker John."

The Captivator, over WJAS and other Columbia Chain stations at 9 o'clock, will offer a program of semi-classical vocal and dance numbers. Compositions by famous composers of military music will be presented by the Kolster Radio Military Band over the same stations at 8:30 o'clock. A half hour later over this chain the Columbia Phonograph hour, featuring Eva Leon, soprano, and Oscar Grogan, tenor, will be given.

Other features of the night will include the Champion Sparkers, Maytag Ramblers and the Power period over KDKA. The Power hour will present W. K. Steiner, pianist, and Cass Ward Whitney, baritone, in a program of German music by the composers, Franz Liszt and Richard Wagner. In addition, the Crowell hour, Ipana Troubadors and Goodrich Silvertown orchestra will be on the air from WCAE and other Red Network stations.

The Glee Club of the Pennsylvania College for Women will be heard over WCAE at 7 o'clock.

The complete program for tonight follows.

CORNER TENTH AND PENN

for most delicious sandwiches

When you want more delicious sandwiches—when you want to save time preparing them—it's time to turn to Pabst-ett, more than cheese.

Pabst-ett spreads as easily as butter. It's distinctive, fresh flavor is captivating. Any way you formerly served cheese, you will find Pabst-ett most delicious. It does not become lumpy or stringy in cooked dishes. Blends perfectly in salads.

Not Successfully Imitated

Pabst-ett is made by the Pabst Process which conserves all the elements of milk — the milk sugar, milk proteins, milk minerals, vitamins, and valuable calcium lost in cheese making. It is as digestible as milk, and more nourishing. To get more than cheese, order Pabst-ett by name.

BENNETT DIES; LINDBERGH'S FLIGHT IN VAIN

PNEUMONIA FATAL TO FLIER

down on Greenley Island. He was forced to give up the flight when half way and was taken to the hospital in Quebec.

Drama and pathos surrounded last minute efforts to save Bennett's life. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, a comrade of the air, learning that a special serum was needed for the treatment of Bennett, sped in an airplane from Curtiss Field, N. Y., yesterday afternoon with the serum, arriving in a raging snow storm at 6:29 last evening. Lindbergh flew as he never flew before, making the distance in record time. The serum, however, was not the kind necessary and his dramatic trip proved in vain.

Lindbergh, who had been nervously waiting at Chateau Frontenac since early morning—he had risen earlier than usual so as to be ready to do anything further that might be within his power—was heart-broken when he heard that Bennett had passed away.

Depressed over the death of Bennett, Lindbergh hopped off from the Plains of Abraham at 11:22 this morning for New York. He had nothing to say as he climbed into the cockpit and shot his plane off in a southerly direction.

So was Commander Richard E. Byrd, for years a bosom friend of Bennett's, depressed. He had already named Bennett as second in command of their expedition this fall to the South Pole.

"I am too grieved for words," said Byrd, tears in his eyes. He had been at the hospital, aiding Bennett all he could.

Mrs. Bennett, who is ill in the hospital where her husband died, was prostrated. She left funeral arrangements to Commander Byrd. She is suffering from tonsilitis and a general nervous condition as a result of the ordeal she has gone through.

Flags on all the public buildings in Quebec were at half mast in honor of the dead flier.

BYRD GAVE HIM CHANCE

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP.)—Floyd Bennett, born in Warrensburg, N. Y., in 1890 was for the first 35 years of his life an obscure figure whose potentialities awaited only the moment of opportunity for development.

That moment came in 1925 when Commander Richard E. Byrd was given the pick of the whole Navy from which to choose mechanics for his Greenland expedition with Donald MacMillan.

Byrd "discovered" Bennett, a virtually unknown aviation mechanic, aboard a man-of-war, a Navy "grease ball," indistinguishable from his fellows under the smear of oil that was the garb of his profession. He was not even especially well known on his own ship.

"But once he had his chance," Byrd writes in his recently published book "Skyward," "he showed he was a good pilot and one of the finest practical men in the Navy for handling an airplane's temperamental mechanisms.

"And above that he was a real man, fearless and true—one in a million."

From the moment that Byrd's keen eyes penetrated the film of grease coating the grubby mechanic and found a man, the two were inseparable. To think of Byrd was to think of Bennett, and vice versa, and therefore much of the material that throws light on the sort of person Bennett really was must of necessity come from Byrd.

FLEW TO POLE TOGETHER

Together Bennett and Byrd endured the hardships of Greenland and together, a year later, they flew over the North Pole.

As soon as the Pole had been crossed, Byrd told Bennett that an aerial crossing of the Atlantic was his next aim and Bennett asked to be taken along.

"We go together," said Byrd, but it was not to be.

On April 16, of last year, the Fokker plane, "America," crashed on its initial test flight and Bennett was so seriously injured that he could take no part in the flight to France.

Bennett had superb control of his emotions but during that test flight, realizing that the plane was nose heavy, he gave the only sign of nervousness he ever displayed. That sign, Byrd says, was to lick his lips, and at the time Byrd nudged Lieut. George Noville and nodded toward Bennett.

The plane, under the guidance of Anthony Fokker, its designer, landed at 60 miles an hour and turned over. All but Fokker were injured. Bennett by far the most seriously. He was hanging upside down in the wreckage on the pilot's seat, his leg smashed, blood pouring over his face, blinded with oil. He believed he was dying; but his first thought was of his companions.

"We heard a strained voice," says Byrd, "crying, 'Look out for fire.'"

It was Bennett, the man in a million; Bennett, fearless and true.

Byrd, himself with a broken arm, made his way to his comrade and did what he could for him until help should come.

"Guess I'm done for, Commander," Bennett told him, and Byrd, though replying, "Nonsense, old man," thought he was right.

For a week it seemed that Bennett would die, but he pulled through. He was up on crutches before the rebuilt America left for France and during the past year he seemed to regain his old strength.

He was on a lecture tour when the chance came to go as chief pilot of New York City's official relief plane to aid the trans-Atlantic Bremen. He had a severe cold, but nothing could stand in the way of his intention to carry aid to the men who had crossed the ocean he himself had once hoped to fly.

On April 18 he and Balchen, who also left a sick-bed to go with the relief party, flew to Detroit in one of Commander Byrd's South Pole planes. They were put to bed in the Ford Hospital, but would not stay there. On the twentieth they took off in a Ford plane for Bar Roberts Bay and made the 800 miles in about nine hours. But Bennett's cold developed into pneumonia, and after waiting a day Balchen pushed on without him. Bennett was taken by plane to Quebec on Sunday, April 22, and his wife, herself suffering from a severe attack of tonsilitis, went there to be with him. Commander Byrd cancelled all his engagements and joined the Bennetts at the hospital.

"Going to Die," Bennett Said At Start

DETROIT, April 25.—(INS.)—Last Friday about a minute before he climbed into the Ford relief plane for the flight to Greenley Island, Floyd Bennett declared he felt he was going to die.

"I feel rotten," he said. "I feel like I'm going to die and I don't care if I do."

Bennett had been treated in a Detroit hospital just before taking off.

UNIONTOWN CHILD KILLED BY TRUCK

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 25.—Mary E. McClelland, 7, of this city, was killed instantly yesterday afternoon when struck by a truck while playing near her home. The child's body was crushed beyond recognition, identification being made by clothing. Aaron Hughes, of Fairchance, driver of the truck surrendered to police. He is being held for the coroner.

Coolidge Wires Bennett's Wife Condolences

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP.)—President Coolidge telegraphed today to Mrs. Floyd Bennett his condolences on the death of her husband and praising "his noble and brave spirit."

Trying to be herself

but held back by cachexia (run-down condition)

You can't be your real self, you can't get ahead socially or in business if you are all run down and unfit for the day's work or play. Be fit and keep fit by eating yeast! This simple though magic food has brought new powers to millions of weak, sickly folks—men, women and children. Let it do likewise for you.

But instead of ordinary, raw baking yeast, eat Yeast Foam Tablets. They're pure yeast, palatable, non-fermenting, the best yeast for eating. Swallow whole or chew like candy. You'll like them. 5c for the handy packet or 50c for 10-day bottle.

Eat Yeast Foam Tablets for cachexia (run-down condition). Loss of appetite. Indigestion. Constipation. Boils—Pimples.

DANGER

Your tongue is the best barometer of your physical condition. Look at it every morning before breakfast. If it is coated with white, yellow or brown coloring, and does not have a clean red appearance you are constipated and not well.

Heed Its Warning

Constipation causes more ailments than all other diseases, and is the result of not having a daily bowel movement. Sick-headache, indigestion, biliousness and sallow complexion follow. Ask your druggist for a 25c red paper package of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS "Safe Laxative". Take a dose to-night and continue one pill after each meal. Don't stop—until your tongue is clean. You will be surprised at the tonic effect this doctor's formula will have on you.

Corns

Perfect comfort in one minute

One minute—that's how quickly Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads end corn pain. They remove the cause—friction and pressure of shoes. You keep permanently rid of corns this way if you apply Zino-pads at the first sign of irritation caused by tight shoes.

Powerful liquids or caustic plasters ignore this principle—often making the toes sore from acid burn. Zino-pads won't harm the tenderest skin. Thin, protective, healing—guaranteed safe and sure. At all drug, shoe and dept. stores. Buy a package today—35c.

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone!

Intestinal Stasis

. . . don't let it rob you of youth and energy

WHY feel older than you really are? Why lose that glorious vigor and buoyancy of youth—years before your time?

A prominent specialist, combating premature old age, has found that it is commonly caused by . . . intestinal stasis. When the intestines become inactive, they fail to eliminate waste matter properly. Then poisons form and are carried by the blood through the whole body. They go to your brain—and make you dull, "blue," headachy. They attack your heart, kidneys, lungs, liver—making you tired and weak—killing your pep—and often leading to serious ailments.

The only way to overcome this condition, says science, is to wake up the intestines. Not by drugging yourself. But in nature's own way—through the Zilatone treatment.

Zilatone stimulates the flow of bile and other digestive juices—naturally. Enables them to stir the intestines into action and throw off wastes and poisons. Goes further, too. Zilatone purifies blood. Builds up the system. You feel better . . . in every way—younger, peppier, happier. Thousands take Zilatone for treatment and prevention of gall stones, heart and kidney troubles; also high blood pressure, when due to auto-intoxication.

Your own druggist will recommend Zilatone. Costs only 60c. Guaranteed to satisfy or money back. See your druggist . . . today.

Zilatone is recommended and sold in this city by all the May Drug Stores and other live druggists.

Beauty of a Salt Mine Altar

SALT miners on the frontier of Ruthenia and Rumania have worship at an altar in the underground workings that has a magical beauty, the altar lamps making the walls of salt glisten like jewels.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WIVES—"BEFORE AND AFTER TAKING"

WHAT is "a man's woman?" Well—"a man's woman" is one thing "before taking," and quite another thing "after taking."

Most of the things about a woman that attracts a man before marriage are apt to get on his nerves after marriage. The very charms that intoxicate him during courtship often drive him to drink after the honeymoon.

The qualities a man demands in a sweetheart and the qualities he wants in a wife no more resemble each other than the things he wants for breakfast resemble the things he wants for dinner. The things for which he picks a girl out are often the things for which he wants to THROW her out.

HELEN ROWLAND

Elusiveness and uncertainty give a real "kick" to the love chase and make a girl seem doubly desirable. Nothing so dulls a man's interest in a woman before marriage as to find her always just where he expected.

But once he has captured and married a woman he wants her to be as handy as his old pipe, as reliable as his watch and always right there," like his office desk and his fountain pen. He wants her to stay PUT.

Before marriage a girl's coquettishness and her popularity with other men pique his interest and flatter his vanity. The average man chooses a woman not so much because he adulores her as because OTHER men admire her.

But after marriage her cooing little comes either maddens him with jealousy or fill him with disgust when he realizes that they are nothing but cheap vanity, and that he is only "one of a crowd."

Before marriage nothing seems to stimulate a man's ardor like sweet indifference. He wants to do his own chasing and his own love making, and nothing puts out the flame of his love so quickly as a warm blanket of response.

But after marriage the woman seeking is supposed to melt and become a torrent of warm affection, spontaneous petting and fervid kisses. And half the flirtatious side-stepping husbands in the world will offer at their wife's cool home-coming a cold, wifely frigidity.

Before marriage a little flattery goes a long way. Too much of it makes a man suspicious of the "hook." But after marriage you can't lay it on too thick. The woman who tells her husband three times a day how wonderful, generous, noble and superior he is can cook with a can opener all her life and still be his Ideal Woman. A compliment a day keeps the divorce lawyer away.

Apparently every time more upon the marriage ceremony as a sleight-of-hand trick won't will turn a butterfly into a grub, a wild woman into an Alice-sit-by-the-fire and a hat rack into a household pet.

And yet men call themselves the LOGICAL sex!

Fay King Tells What True Nerve Really Means

By FAY KING.

IT often takes more nerve to do a simple thing than a hazardous thing, it seems to me.

In fact, for me, it would take a great deal more nerve.

For instance, I have always wanted to wear a gaudy flower in my hair.

Have I the nerve? Not so you can notice it!

I have always tried to get up enough nerve to carry a pair of opera glasses around in an art gallery to get a close up of the skied masterpieces.

There are also some beautiful decorated ceilings in big public buildings I would also like to take a close look at, but I haven't got the nerve to squint at them through a telescope!

It takes more nerve than I'll ever have to say "yes" when somebody asks me if they are boring me and they are!

People get a lot of credit for doing stunts, even if they fall at them. But I tell you it takes more nerve to admit that you can't afford something or to carry a bun out with you from a restaurant when you need it for the next meal which you can't afford, or to break sad news than it does to do some of this other stuff that gets all the credit for nerve.

The people whose nerve I admire most are those who can be brave about the simpler things that it takes nerve to do and for which one gets no glory.

Thorough Examinations to Find "What's the Matter?"

IN writing letters about their health many persons give one, or perhaps two symptoms. For instance, a correspondent says, "I have a pain in my chest," or "I have severe palpitation of the heart." Then he asks, "What is the cause of this trouble?"

DR. COPELAND

Such symptoms are caused by a number of different conditions. Neither one is a definite and positive sign of any particular disability.

Pain in the chest may be the result of pressure due to gas formation in the stomach. This may seem strange, but on thinking it over you will see why such a disturbance in the stomach may cause pressure on the diaphragm and interfere with free lung action. The discomfort from this might be described as a "pain in the chest."

This symptom, too, might be due to muscle strain and have nothing to do with the interior of the chest. It might be caused by pleurisy or by some difficulty with the bronchial tubes or lungs.

Palpitation of the heart is another symptom for which there are many causes. If it is a temporary affair, occuring rarely, it is due probably to overcrowding the stomach, to fermentation, or to indigestion. A little bicarbonate of soda will be likely to relieve the immediate attack, and greater care in the eating habits will prevent repetition.

Excessive smoking, excessive coffee drinking, excessive exercise after eating—all these excesses are possible causes for palpitation. Worry, thyroid gland disturbance, nervousness, real disease of the heart, and high blood pressure are other causes.

You see it is difficult to give any conclusive opinion regarding the cause of a single symptom. It is impossible for a doctor to know what one or two unusual experiences mean. No wonder they puzzle the victim.

How would the doctor find out just why these annoying symptoms appear? He would do so by a careful examination of the patient. Otherwise he would be as much puzzled as the sufferer himself.

When symptoms like these or any other obscure ailments trouble you, take it over with your doctor. Tell him all about yourself. He will need to know everything if he is to deal with your case intelligently.

You must not be out of patience with the doctor if he cannot give you immediately and offhand a definite and positive reply as to the cause of your trouble. The watchmaker can't tell you why your watch won't run by a hasty glance at the case. He must examine the works to find out what is wrong.

When you are out of kilter, uncomfortable and miserable have it out with the doctor. In the long run you will save money and suffering by early attention.

Answers to Health Queries

N. B. F. Q.—What causes the skin to itch and crack around the toes?

A.—This may be due to eczema.

H. J. M. Q.—What can be done for chronic headaches? They occur at the back of the neck, at the base of the skull, lasting about four days—this condition has persisted for 20 years.

A.—Headaches are due to a number of causes: eye strain, infection from teeth, tonsils and sinuses, constipation, indigestion, autointoxication, high blood pressure, kidney conditions or catarrh. A thorough examination should locate the source of the trouble so that it may be properly treated and cleared up.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, April 26

I find my zenith doth depend upon a most auspicious star.
—SHAKESPEARE.

THE sidereal operations for this day point to a day of revolutionary events which may be responsible for a radical change in affairs as well as the environment. While these new projects may engage the highest endeavor yet there are elements of financial peril, unless utmost discretion and business acumen be exercised. Those in the employment of others should be careful not to invite criticism or offend superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of eventful and unexpected occurrences with changed conditions and unusual new adventures. Although these hold excellent advantages, yet losses and possible fraud are indicated unless much good judgment and wise management be used. Be careful if in employment.

A child born on this day will be brilliant and ingenious in many ways but may need careful training in responsibility and integrity, as well as prudence and admonition.

Natalie Nativity, Artemus Ward, Astrologer.

For the Lovelorn

Just a Miss

DEAR MISS GALE:

Am a constant reader of your column and see what wonderful advice you give. Therefore am sure that you will help me. My problem: I am a girl of 17 and like a boy of 19. He is my best girl friend's brother. He has asked me several times to be his girl, but I always refused on account of my age, but now I would like to be friendly with him. Miss Gale recently he wanted to accompany me down the steps and I refused. Did I do right? Miss Gale would it be all right to tell his sister that I care for him, or will he think that I am running after him? I think he is a very nice looking fellow. Miss Gale, am going to be invited to a wedding and I want to refuse. Should I tell the girl that I will not accept or should I promise to come and just don't show up? The only reason for refusing is that we were not very friendly when we meet on the street. We would just greet each other and exchange a few words so that is about all. If I refuse she will know that I have no good reason for it.

JUST A MISS.

Why should you refuse to let a boy help you down steps? He was only being courteous. Invite him to call, my dear. That is your privilege. This girl apparently wants to be your friend, so why not go to the wedding? You would offend her deeper by refusing while accepting the invitation and then not going is unthinkable.

Betsy Bee

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a girl 14 years old and a junior in high school. I am considered good looking by my friends and inclined to flirt quite a bit. I come from a good family though. You may think me rather young, but I have my opinions on the three foremost questions under discussion. As for the girl who smokes. If she smokes in private, I think it is her own business, but if she smokes in public she does it just to be smart and is just making a little fool of herself. A girl who drinks, no matter how good a family she comes from, can never be considered a true gentlewoman. I think the boys are just as much or more responsible for petting. As for those girls of from 15 to 21 who say they are in love they do not know the true meaning of love. I have had many petty love affairs and, recognizing them as such, have not bothered myself about them.

BETSY BEE.

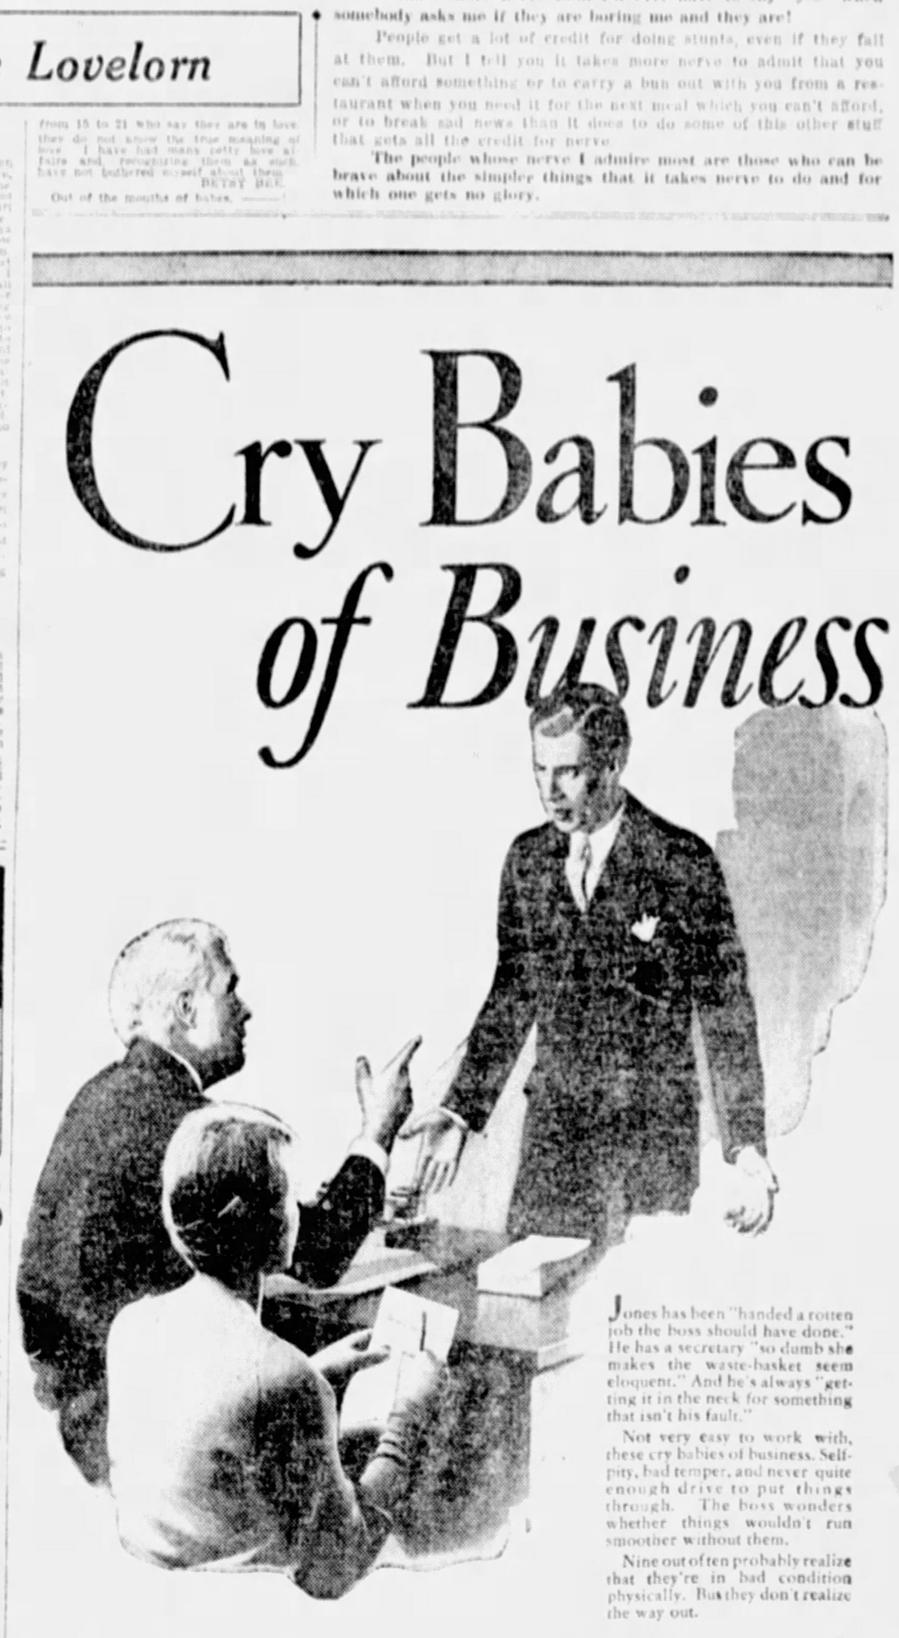
Cry Babies of Business



Jones has been "handed a rotten job the boss should have done." He has a secretary "so dumb she makes the waste-basket seem eloquent." And he's always "getting it in the neck for something that isn't his fault."

Not very easy to work with, these cry babies of business. Self-pity, bad temper, and never quite enough drive to put things through. The boss wonders whether things wouldn't run smoother without them.

Nine out of ten probably realize that they're in bad condition physically. But they don't realize the way out.

THEY'VE tried ordinary laxatives, from health foods that take a month to act, to cathartics that leave them weak and shaken. Naturally they don't like them. And naturally they are a little puzzled over the answer to their own problem . . .

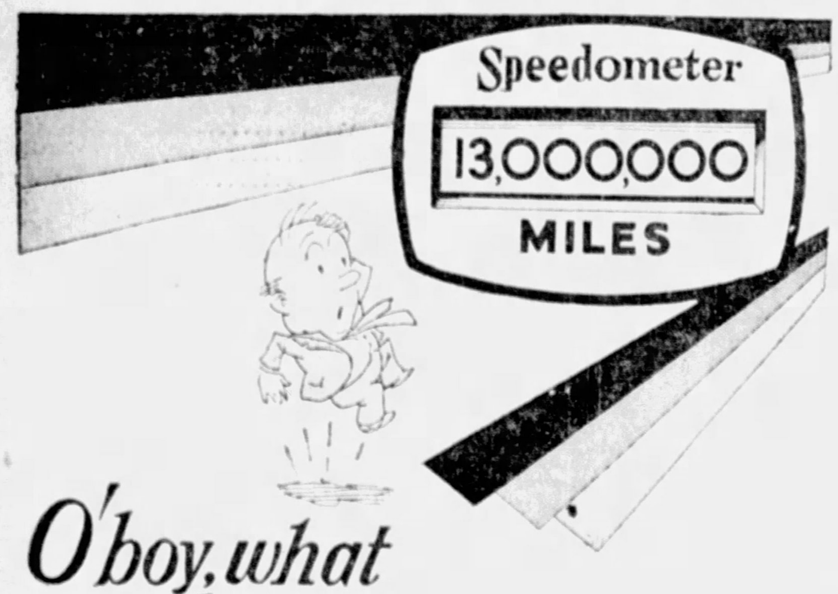
Feen-a-mint is different!

You don't swallow it hastily—you chew it, exactly as you would a delicious bit of chewing gum. And as you chew, its tasteless, yet almost magically effective laxative principle begins to mix with the mouth fluids and actually becomes a part of the digestive process!

So, instead of striking the body a blow without warning, as it were, Feen-a-mint gently helps the system to help itself!

Results are amazing. A new vitality and a sense of fitness—a fresh, clear-eyed, up-in-the-morning-early feeling, as hundreds of thousands of men and women know. You will find this wonderful laxative at your druggist's now. Take a Feen-a-mint tablet at any time, confident of feeling a different person in six to eight hours.

Feen-a-mint



O'boy, what a ride! -

MR., MRS. and Miss, Pittsburgh Yellow Cab Rider rode in Yellows for a total of 13,000,000 miles last year. A long ride? Yes, but they liked it. So much so, that they've already embarked on a longer one for 1928.

More folks are turning to Yellow Cabs every day because they are learning there is a difference in taxicab service and the regulars are riding more because they know there is a difference.

For a safe, comfortable ride from where you are to anywhere you want to go, combined with courteous attention call COurt 5700 or "Hail a Yellow Anywhere."

PGH. OPERATORS WAIT RATE CUT REPLY

Pittsburgh district coal shippers and the general traffic committee of the Chamber of Commerce today are awaiting a reply from the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on the appeal made to the eastern trunk line executives by the coal operators for a voluntary reduction of rates on lake cargo coal.

Voluntary rate cutting by the northern roads is declared to afford the only hope of saving Pittsburgh a share of the lake trade this season. Pennsylvania directors are holding their monthly meeting in Philadelphia today, but officials have declared that there is little probability of any action on the rate case.

The Chamber of Commerce announced it protested the proposal made several days ago to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Illinois Central Railroad to equalize the rate on steel from Chicago to New Orleans with the rate from Pittsburgh to Baltimore.

WOMAN, 3 MEN HELD IN RAIDS

Thirty-six barrels of mash and a 100-gallon still were seized late last night when prohibition agents raided a dwelling at 2661 Beechwood boulevard. Frank Profeta, 36, found in the place, was arrested by the agents.

In a raid on a saloon at 1012 Warrington avenue prohibition agents arrested William McGall and seized, they say, 20 gallons of beer and 15 gallons of whisky.

A dwelling in East Monongahela and a residence at Runola also were raided by the agents. Liquor was found at each place, agents say. Anna Lehew was arrested in the Runola raid and Alex Passerello was taken into custody at East Monongahela.

12 CARNEGIE STUDENTS TO ENTER THETA TAU

Twelve engineering students, including five Pittsburghers, will be initiated into Theta Tau, an honorary professional fraternity for students of the college of engineering of Carnegie Institute of Technology at the annual initiation exercises and banquet Saturday night in the Carnegie Inn. They are Robert H. Johnson, Henry L. Bunker, Jr., Robert R. Galbreath, Russell Loxterman and David K. Tomer, of Pittsburgh; Charles F. Suesserott, Chambersburg; Theodore J. Truman, Youngstown, O.; George M. Wile, Ashland, O.; Ben R. Auld, Portage; John W. Luems, Monessen; T. L. McCombs, Warren, O., and Robert A. Schmidt, Lakewood, O.

Hampden as "Caponsacchi" Draws Noble Poetic Drama From Browning's Great Poem

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

ONLY superlatives can do justice to "Caponsacchi" as presented by Walter Hampden at the Alvin Theater last night. It was a triumph for Robert Browning, who chiseled out of marble those souls revealed in action. It was a triumph for Arthur Goodrich, who took the figures created by Browning and set them upon the stage in a dramatization technically perfect, besides putting on their lips words that seem of a piece with Browning's own style. It was a triumph for Walter Hampden, who not only played the hero-priest as if he lived the part, but also put the life and spirit into all his fellow players. And it was a triumph for Claude Bragdon, who designed the scenic production and achieved the Italian effects with a modern ruthlessness more cruel than any wilderness of detail a Belasco might have devised. Yes, "Caponsacchi" is a triumph that can be justly appraised only in superlatives.

It is probably the finest poetic tragedy ever written in America. For it was written here, though Browning furnished the theatre's blood-tinctured of a veined humanity." It is in blank verse of such natural cadences that it seems the inevitable overfl w of the lips. There is no fustian anywhere, any more than there is anything strained in the plot of black intrigue and bloody crime into this play the company surrounding Hampden poured the sum of their powers—and the result was like mighty organ music in cathedral aisles. It hushed the audience into reverent silence and tense waiting.

Hampden's own work, of course, was magnificent—pulsating and vibrant with emotion and sincerity. The bit of comedy in the carnival was admirably done, and after that the serious scenes were played with matchless dignity. The nobility of the lines was brought out as well as the meaning. But the entire cast was equally fine. Pompilia was played by Mabel Moore, and she rose to the greatest exaltation of Edith Barretts portrayal when the drama was given in New York. The remainder of the cast is intact, with only a few minor changes. Ernest Roman makes the cruel ferocity of Guido seem plausible as a Renaissance portrait; Cecil Yapp enriches the part of Canon Conti with an unctuous humor of rare vintage. Stanley Howlett as Pope Innocent is the incarnation of saintly wisdom and spiritual power; and all the others were equally worthy of commendation for the skill and sincerity of their acting. As the "Hamlet" of the previous evening had been incoherent and patchy, so this "Caponsacchi" was made a piece of perfect tapestry.

The people of Pittsburgh have had few opportunities to see anything so fine so finely done. It is Browning—it is Hampden—it is poetry and drama—and a profound lesson in psychology and ethics. If Thanksgiving Day come next week, we'll have something to be thankful for.

Playing

WALTER HAMPDEN

Mr. Hampden plays a heroic priest in "Caponsacchi," presented for the first time last night in the Alvin. As pictured here the man of the cloth is at play, masquerading at a carnival.

BALIEFF SHOW COMING

Balieff's "Chauve Souris" comes to the Alvin for the week of April 30. The seat sale opens tomorrow. From a repertoire of more than 100 numbers Balieff has selected the most popular presentations, including the "March of The Wooden Soldiers."

The seat sale for the fourth week of "Wings" will open in the box office of the Nixon at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The schedule of this picture is for two shows a daily, matinee and evening.

John Thorne will join the George Sharp players, to appear in the Pitt as Uncle David in "Tommy," next week. Mr. Thorne is a native of Punxsutawney and he recently closed a long road tour. Last season he played the philosophical taxi driver in "Seventh Heaven" with the Sharp organization in the Pitt.

Ethel Davis will appear in the Davis next week as part of the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in song characterizations. On the screen will be "Almost Human" with Vera Reynolds and Kenneth Thomson, Pittsburgh boy.

SOMERSET, Pa., April 25.—Leroy N. Scott, 72, retired farmer, died yesterday in the house in which he was born.

M-G-M STAFFS MEET HERE

With more than 100 members in attendance, sales and district managers from Washington, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Indianapolis, Chicago and Charlotte, N. C., the regional sales convention of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Film Corporation will open a two-day session in the William Penn Hotel, Friday.

Nicholas Schenck, president of Loew's Incorporated; Felix Feist, general sales manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; William Rogers, eastern sales manager; Howard Dietz, general publicity director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and William R. Ferguson, exploitation manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will be in Pittsburgh for the "get-together" party, which will be given over to a discussion of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture output for the new year.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has mapped out an extensive and elaborate schedule of film release for 1928-1929, which will feature Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo, Lillian Gish, Marion Davies, Lon Chaney, John Gilbert, William Haines, Ramon Novarro, Joan Crawford and a dozen other screen notables. The regional sales staffs have been called together to discuss this program.

J. J. Maloney, resident manager of the local distributing office, will act as host to the visiting delegates during their stay in the city.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

NAME MAUCHER DE SOTO CORP. HEAD HERE

New Car

C. W. Matheson, vice president in charge of sales of De Soto Motor Corporation, the recently announced new division of Chrysler Corporation, announces the appointment of A. C. Maucher as Pittsburgh district manager.

Mr. Maucher has had veteran experience in the automobile business. Starting as a shop worker in 1902, when the industry was in its infancy, Mr. Maucher has been in turn demonstrator, Glidden tour driver, service manager, sales manager and distributor. But most of his experience was gained with the Peerless Motor Car Company at Philadelphia.

In 1915, after he had risen from demonstrator to manager at the Peerless Philadelphia branch, Mr. Maucher became associated with the Philadelphia Press as automobile editor and manager of automobile advertising. Leaving the newspaper field after two years he became the first dealer in Philadelphia for the Standard Steel Car Company and later assistant to the general manager of the Standard Steel Car Company.

In 1922 Mr. Maucher became treasurer and general manager of the Durant branches in Philadelphia territory. In 1927 he became vice president and general manager of the Peerless agency at Philadelphia.

A. C. MAUCHER

Mr. Maucher is the Pittsburgh district manager for the new De Soto Motor Corporation, which is building a new line of six-cylinder cars. The new organization is a division of the Chrysler Corporation.

"SHIMMY" COMPANION OF A LOOSE BOLT

A loose bolt may throw out of balance or out of rhythm the entire mechanism of a car, and bring on "shimmying"—which means increased wear on tires and frequently more serious troubles. It is economy to have the car or truck "tightened up" at regular intervals.

SLUGGISHNESS TRACED TO DEFECTIVE COIL

Engine sluggishness may be traceable to a defective ignition coil. A new coil frequently increases not only power, speed and pick-up, but gasoline mileage as well.

Auto Field Day Arranged for May 19

An Automobile Field Day and Driving Contest for women will be held at Schenley Oval, Schenley Park, Saturday, May 19, in place of the Field Day called off Monday on account of rain, W. N. Owings, secretary of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, announced today. The automobile dealers are assisting the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council in a safe drivers' course for women.

ALONG AUTO ROW

By H. W. DIETRICH,
Automobile Editor.

PRESIDENT OF PEERLESS

The board of directors of the Peerless Motor Car Corporation has elected Leon R. German, vice president for two years and general manager since January, president of the company. H. M. Crane was named chairman of the board; Charles A. Tucker, vice president in charge of sales; Albert F. Misch, vice president in charge of manufacturing; Fred W. Black, vice president in charge of engineering, and Fred A. Trester, secretary and treasurer.

Leon R. German

The election of Mr. German as president of the company adds another name to the list of men who have started from the bottom. His first job in the automobile industry was as a stenographer for the Olds Motor Works in 1911.

CHRYSLER PROGRESS

The Chrysler Corporation earned $19,484,800, net, in 1927, 27 per cent more than in the previous year, stockholders were informed at their meeting a few days ago. Indications of the first quarter of 1928 are that this year will show a continuation of the increase in sales and profits. Commenting on the corporation's operations, Walter Chrysler, head of the organization, remarked that its advance during the last year from fourth place to third place in the automobile industry reflected the progress it had made in the first full year's operation producing a line of cars covering the entire price range.

Walter Chrysler.

A NEW RECORD

General Motors dealers in March made 182,706 sales of new cars, 37,431 more than were made in the same month last year. An announcement by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, states that these figures constitute a new record for General Motors, the best previous record having been made in April, 1927, when 180,106 new cars were sold consumers. In making this comparison, said Mr. Sloan, it should be remembered that April is normally a larger month than March for retail sales on account of the seasonal trend.

$150,000 FOR ADDITION

With a few automobile factories producing more than a thousand cars a day and several companies about to reach and exceed that production, the question of the layman is where are all those cars going. That they are going somewhere is illustrated by the announcement of Durant Motors, Inc., that a contract has been awarded for the construction of a $750,000 extension to its Lansing, Mich., plant. This new addition will increase the capacity of that plant to 1,000 cars a day. The plant is to be in full operation August 1.

A BIG PARADE

Three and four years ago there was much talk about the saturation point in automobile production and merchandising. Today talk of saturation points as far as automobiles are concerned is unknown. Better cars and more and better [illegible] are the reason, along with versal acceptance, as told by ament figures on production arch. The total automotive for last month was 412,875 units, an increase of 18,382 over the same period last year.

OUTLOOK NOW BEST

That the business outlook throughout the country is more favorable than it has been for many years was the report made at the factory of the Cadillac Motor Car Company during a convention of the company's district managers. The meeting followed the great e a r quarter years business in the history of Cadillac sales throughout the country during the first quarter were 58 per cent higher than during the same period of 1927. The meetings were in charge of H. M. Stephens, the company's general sales manager, who with Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker and others, discussed improved merchandising methods.

H. M. Stephens

ARISTOCRATIC "SALESMAN"

Pittsburgh has a whole army of two-legged automotive salesmen, but of four-footed automotive "salesmen" the city cannot muster a squad. Among these many-legged "salesmen" is Ted, an aristocrat, descendent of a long line of English bulls. He is eligible for American, Canadian and English shows, and is owned by C. E. Hamilton, president of the Alco Tire Company, Goodyear dealer exclusively, with service stations on Bigelow boulevard, Broad street and Second avenue. Ted, with his movie goggles and his corn cob pipe, makes the twenty-sixth of Alco's sales staff.

Ted.

CHICAGO PACKERS LOSE

The fabled Chicago packers, who lose only the squeal of the pig, have been outdone by the automobile producers. From Detroit comes the story of how the Ford Motor Company has converted every bit of the merchant fleet purchased from the United States Shipping Board, to industrial purposes, including the whistle. The whistles from these war-built ships are now doing signal duty in the Ford-Edison plant and on the company's new barges.

LEASE BUILDING

The United Motors Service Corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, has leased the building at 418 Roup street, where it will operate a sales and service branch. The building contains 10,000 square feet of floor space and runs through to South Fairmount avenue.

SAMSON TIRES HALT SKIDS

Pursuing his usual policy of having a personal investigation made of any item that will add to the efficiency of the operation of the Los Angeles fire department, Chief Ralph J. Scott a few weeks ago ordered the installation of a full set of Samson balloon tires on the automobile used by Deputy Chief F. C. Nowell.

In a recent report made on the tires so far, Chief McDowell declares that, despite the fact he is obliged to make many quick stops—stops call for the best there is in any tire and quick starts that also call for a maximum of efficiency in casings—there has not been any indication of a slip or a skid.

LABOR MOST COSTLY IN SERVICING OF AUTO

Labor is the largest item of cost in automotive service.

SENATORS FAVOR ROAD BILLS

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Favorable report on three measures, of interest to the automobile users of the country, have just been made by the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

Two were introduced by Senator F. L. Oddie, of Nevada, one of which authorizes the President to lend to Latin American countries, highway engineers of this government, with the end in view that they might profit by our highway construction experience. The second measure authorizes an appropriation for the construction and maintenance of roads through unreserved public lands in western states, which will link up the highway systems of the country.

The third measure was Senator Kenneth McKellar's bill, which authorizes a separate and independent appropriation of $20,000,000 a year for the fiscal years of 1930, 1931 and 1932 for improving rural post roads. The McKellar bill is in addition to the so-called Federal aid bill which provides $75,000,000 a year for Federal aid.

"Passage of all three of these measures would be of inestimable benefit to the motorist of this country," according to J. Horton Wyeas, president of the American Motorists' Association. "Registration figures of the states show that the use of automobiles and motor bus transportation is increasing approximately three times as fast as the country's road building program. It is elementary to say that bad roads are the most expensive for the motorists. He must pay for good roads whether he has them or not and a speeding up of the Federal government's highway construction program is regarded by the motorists as essential."

PAVED ROADS SAVE TIRES

AKRON, O., April 25.—Demonstrations in actual service in which it was proved that tires wear 700 per cent better on paved roads than on gravel roads show the unequivocal economy of paved highways. Tire test cars in Texas during the winter months tested tires on both paved and gravel roads in order to learn first hand the difference in tire tread wear on highways in various stages of improvement. With cars equipped with the same size of tire tests were made on both gravel and paved highways, running thousands of miles a month in two daily 12-hour shifts. Time was taken out only to fill up with oil and gas. Every precaution was taken to insure equal conditions for the tires except in road conditions.

With pavement giving motorists seven times the mileage that is possible on gravel roads, tire engineers point out that it is reasonable to estimate that the thousands of miles of pavement in this country are saving motorists millions of dollars every year. Pavement often permits of greater speed, more comfortable riding and less wear and tear on the car. All of these things contribute to the acceleration of business at more or less distant points, tire men claim. Such appreciable savings are not possible on gravel roads or roads of similar improvement, it is claimed.

Is your oil safe FOR MODERN MOTORING?

High-speed engines . . . better roads . . . faster driving—hotter motors! Today, the safe oils are those which can withstand terrific heat. And this is why Tiolene Motor Oil is more popular today than ever before:—It has greater heat-resistance because it is skillfully refined from the highest grade crude oil Nature has produced.

Tiolene is made by The Pure Oil Company from the famous Cabin Creek crude—a premium grade of those Pennsylvania crudes from which the better motor oils are made. Tiolene, therefore, is "100% Pure Pennsylvania" and more—it is 100% Super-Pennsylvania quality!

No matter what car you drive—or under what conditions—you'll discover that a crankcase full of Tiolene gives more miles of safe lubrication. Try it!

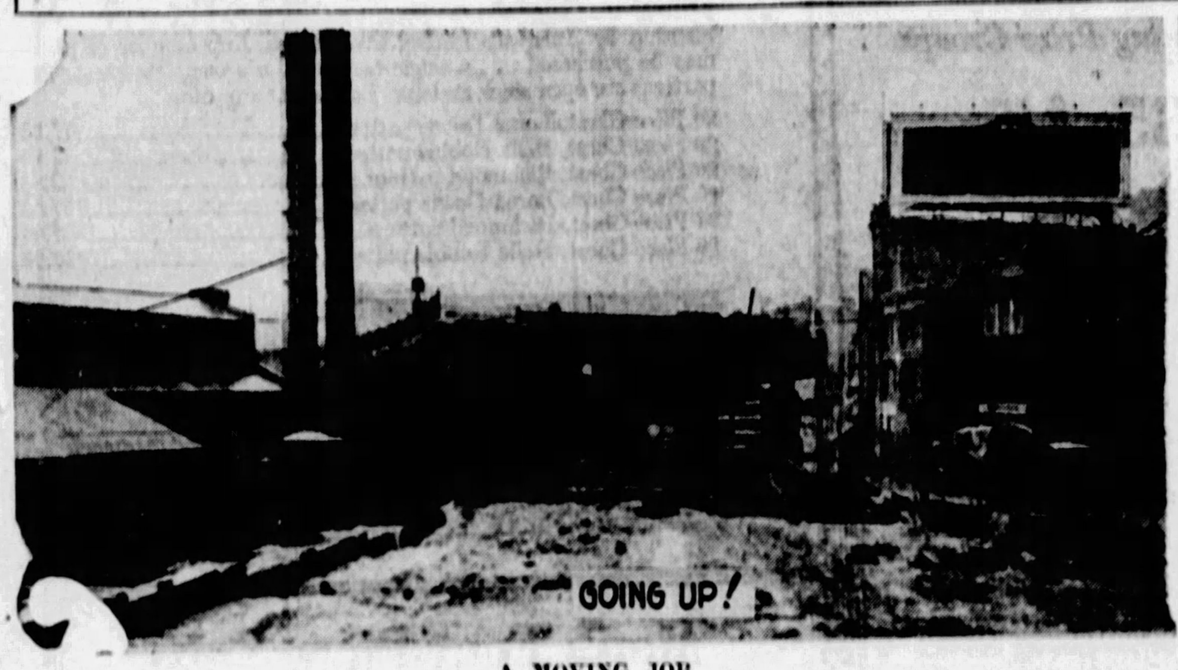
STATE ASKS TRUCK OWNERS TO AID SAFETY DRIVE

ELEVATE BOULEVARD -:- BUILD NEW -:- FOR HIGH SPEED ROADWAY



A MOVING JOB

Workmen here are engaged in raising the bridgework at the outer end of the Boulevard of the Allies, at Forbes street, to its new level, when it will be connected with a new roadway being cut into the hillside above Forbes street. The photograph shows part of the false work that has been built up under the old roadway, which formerly connected with Forbes street at the foreground of the photograph.

ONE OF THE PIERS

While large staffs of workmen are engaged in raising the roadway and in cutting out a new avenue along the hillside, other crews are building the piers for the sections of the new boulevard that will cross Forbes street at two points. In this photograph is shown the pier that is being constructed on the former grounds of the Children's Hospital. The new roadway will provide a high speed outlet from the downtown district.

Free Car Inspection At Service Stations

HARRISBURG, April 25.—An appeal to motor truck owners to participate in the Department of Highways Safety — "Save-a-Life" — campaign, being conducted throughout this month, was made here today by Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar of motor vehicles.

Owners of large motor truck fleets are generally co-operating, Mr. Eynon said, but the individual owner of a motor truck has not responded. John Douglas, Jr., president of Allegheny County Team and Truck Owners' Association and the operator of some of the largest fleet of trucks in Pittsburgh, has been enthusiastically co-operating in the safety "Save-a-Life" campaign.

Mr. Douglas indorsed the campaign of the Department of Highways, saying:

"No motor truck owner should hesitate in the matter of co-operation with the Department of Highways' Safety 'Save-a-Life' campaign, for it not only means the saving of human lives and limbs but it means a large financial saving to the truck owners, themselves. Business instincts, as well as humane instincts, make co-operation with this campaign a necessity. Bad brakes may mean a serious collision and a resultant damage suit, not to mention the misery and sorrow that may be brought to the home of a victim."

Many service stations and garages in this city have been designated official inspection depots, where inspection of motor cars may be had free and cars' faults pointed out. Windshield stickers are provided those whose cars pass the inspection.

CHECK HOSE AFTER ANTI-FREEZE REMOVAL

When anti-freeze mixtures are no longer necessary, one of the first things to do is to examine the radiator hose connection. Anti-freeze mixtures sometimes break down the inner lining of the hose and tend to impede circulation, especially if the winter has been severe. In examining the hose, see whether the lining has peeled or curled, or chipped off in places. It may simply have swelled up so as to reduce the size of the passage. In any of these cases, new hose connections should be installed if the cooling system is to function properly during hot weather.

PERFECT FIT FOR PLUGS

Informing car owners of the importance of proper type spark plugs in order to obtain the best performance from an automobile, H. Rabezanz, research engineer, says in part:

"When a plug is too short it does not bring the firing points far enough into the combustion chamber. Good ignition under this condition is impossible. The motor is bound to be sluggish and inefficient.

"A plug that is too long extends too far into the firing chamber. This will cause the lower end of the plug to become overheated, resulting in igniting the fuel too early.

"The correct length of plug fits so that the bottom of the spark plug shell is just flush with the inside wall of the cylinder head and the spark gap extends beyond into the combustion chamber.

"To get maximum power and efficiency from an engine it is absolutely necessary that the proper type spark plug be used, as recommended by the manufacturer's spark plug chart."

HUNTING GOOD IN FAR WEST

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 25.—A census just completed of big game in the 18 national forests of California show that there are more than 250,000 specimens of larger wild life animals in these national reserves. Of these, 228,000 are deer, more than 10,000 are bear, and least, numerically, are the elk with a count of 125.

The census shows that quail are increasing, but there is a decrease in grouse, ducks and geese.

Hunting under certain restrictions is allowed in the national forests of California, although not in the national parks. Every effort is made to conserve wild life in the national forests, and in the 19,000,000 acres provision is made for the exclusive grazing of game. There are 25 state and four federal game refuges, covering almost 2,000,000 acres, in the national forests of California alone.

During 1927 the forest service assisted in distribution and planting of about 4,000,000 fish fry of different species in the streams.

In a recent publication, the outing bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California has listed 142 improved public camps that may be utilized by visitors to the national forests of California.

DON'T CHANGE TYPE OF MOTOR PARTS

Heavy duty, low speed engines cannot be converted to the lightweight, high speed type by simply replacing certain original units with light weight parts. In renewing parts, factory duplicates should be used in most instances.

LACK OF OIL MAKES NEW CARS GROW OLD

Lack of lubrication makes new cars grow old rapidly. Rattles and squeaks mean that springs and spring shackles are being neglected and require attention. The moving parts of the chassis, as well as the rest of the car, should be lubricated regularly. Once every 500 miles is the safe average for oiling.

FREQUENT CHANGING OF OIL SAVES ENGINE

Much automobile engine wear can be prevented by changing the oil at regular intervals.

MANY CAUSES FOR DECREASE IN POWER

When the efficiency of the engine starts to drop, it is possible that the piston rings need to be changed. Other causes may be—warped or burned valves, worn pistons and cylinders, old spark plugs, worn or dirty ignition units.

I WAS ready to return to Adonimanango, our chief depot up the Ogowe River and had given orders for an early start at dawn, but that evening I received a message that the Camma chief, Renchoro's father, would visit me next day at sundown.

ALFRED A. HORN

A leopard hunt was my next day's run. News had reached us that an old leopard had killed a slave girl close to a cane brake where she had gone for a nice calabash of cool water at a clear spring which was situated in the middle of the cane brake.

This leopard had paid yearly visits to the seashore and had caused the death of many women and dogs, always attacking them near the springs when they went there for water. It is a strange fact that most of the human beings killed by leopards are women.

Early dawn on rising I found a motely crowd of slaves and saltmakers, they were armed mostly with guns and spears and were making merry on palm wine. Renchoro and I were accompanied by a slave who was armed with a formidable, long assegai and had seen the leopard just after he had killed the slave girl and knew exactly, as it proved afterward, the tricks and moves of the man-eater.

Killing a Man-Eater

The rest of the party accompanied by five dogs formed a circle round the cane brake and soon the drive began. The slave boy took a stand about 150 yards from an old withered hardwood tree with Renchoro about 20 yards on our right, here we remained prone and kept in the edge of the long coarse grass which the beast always made for when hunted from the cane brake. We had not waited long before the keen-eyed slave, pointing to a knoll or mound about 300 yards distant where the leopard was situated between us and the animal drivers, then he disappeared as the yelling spearmen and dogs approached.

I might have killed the brute at 300 yards but was afraid I might possibly miss my distance and kill one of the beaters. The next time I sighted him was jumping into the old tree near us. He executed this move so rapidly that I did not get a chance to shoot.

The next moment I had him as he raised his head to get a glimpse of the barking dogs which were now close to us. The bullet struck him just at the juncture of the spine and head. My boy now shot him low in the spine and the slave, rushing forward, threw his spear into the animal's body. I asked him why he had done this and he laughingly assured me that a leopard will play dead on you, especially the man-eaters.

Jubilation and a Hunt

As he hung limp from the tree fork, he looked dead enough, but I was cautious not to go near the monster, which, the natives declared, was one of the biggest they had ever seen. Now, one of the most amusing sights I saw took place as they removed him from the tree. A circle dance around him took place, some brandishing their spears as they danced, calling on the spirits of those to witness that they were revenged.

Then a procession to our camp on the seashore took place, insulting jokes were addressed to the monster, such as these: We hope, leopard, you enjoy your visit to our camp; we will make you welcome. You seem to have fallen in love with our women, you have a good taste, but now, old man, we will see how nice your meat is.

After breakfast we decided to divide our force of hunters. One-half under the Renchoro were to shoot meat for his father's reception, as he was always accompanied by two large war canoes and had a large retinue of relatives. The other half and myself were to hunt for the leopards. We took the five dogs with us.

The meat-hunters hunted the north side of the island whilst I and my party took in the south portion and the beaters and dogs kept well behind us so as to avoid accidents. Small buck and other animals fled before the beaters, the leopards took cover in the old trees; they are exceedingly clever, these tree leopards, and are hard to find or drive.

Leopard-Dog Fight

It was nearing sundown before our efforts were rewarded. The beaters decided to try the bush along the seashore and they had not proceeded far when from the thicket bounded a fine dark leopard nearly twice as big as the dark animal shot by my boy previously. I could have killed him as he ran within 200 yards of where I had taken a stand. He sprang into an old tree and lashing his tail from side to side he calmly waited for the dogs.

One of our five dogs was a half-bred Spanish bloodhound and soon found the leopard in the tree. With their noses pointed up towards him

WRANGEL, FOE OF REDS, IS DEAD

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 25.—(AP.)—Baron Peter Wrangel, the last hope of the Russian "Whites," whose army the Bolshevists chased into the Black Sea seven years ago, died here this morning.

The end came in the little suburban home to which he retired in 1926, leaving the last remnants of his command, a few Caucasians and Don Cossacks, in Jugo-Slavia.

During his observance of the Russian Easter holidays, Gen. Wrangel received the last sacraments from the Russian archpriest who during the last eight years had followed the fortunes of his chief.

Baron Peter Nicholaievich Wrangel, by individual deeds of courage and bravery, rose from the grade of a non-commissioned officer in the Russian Army to high rank during the World War. Then after the revolution in that country and the advent of the Soviet regime he led a losing fight against the Bolsheviks.

On November 15, 1920, the Bolshevists captured Sebastopol from his forces and from then on his army gradually was evacuated. Gen. Wrangel declined an invitation of the Bolsheviks to surrender. The Reds, pressing their offensive, claimed to have captured 40,000 prisoners. It was reported that mutinies helped bring about defeat to Gen. Wrangel's forces and several of his generals were reported to have committed suicide.

Forced to flee from Russia, Gen. Wrangel never gave up the idea of forming a new army to fight the Soviet government.

The general lost his personal fortune and his wife all her jewels when the yacht Lucullus was sunk in collision with the British steamer Adria off Constantinople harbor.

Gen. Wrangel was born at St. Petersburg, now Leningrad, August 15, 1878.

"O-H-H!"

It's good to get a chance to sit down, and as for having someone rub the "dogs" and muscles—ah! It's in the California dance marathon, Los Angeles. Barney Allen and Bobbie Douglas, Chicagoans, who are expected to win.

"TIME OUT!"

This, too, is a welcome time, the regular rest period. This is Los Angeles' second annual marathon dance and young Los Angeles is backing it strongly. The young ladies above, however, are weakening.

PARTY OF 63 MAY GUESTS LANDS

CHERBOURG, France, April 25.—(AP.)—Sixty-three specially invited guests from Pittsburgh landed from the Aquitania today to attend the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. May, well-known residents of Pittsburgh now touring Europe and Africa. The event will be celebrated in Paris on April 27.

The guests, accompanied by Walter A. May, Jr., expressed delight to be in France. For many of them it was their first visit. All expenses, including the trans-Atlantic trip, are being paid by Mr. and Mrs. May.

A representative of the Mays came to Cherbourg to escort the guests to Paris and insisted on paying all expenses, even tips to porters.

"Mr. May told me his guests must not be allowed to put their hands into their pockets under any consideration and that the trip must not cost them a red cent," he said.

A special telephone service between Paris and Pittsburgh will be installed from the restaurant at which a banquet will be served on the twenty-seventh to keep in communication with the seven invited friends who were unable to make the trip.

U. S. MISSIONARY SLAIN IN CHINA

International News Service

PEKIN, April 25.—The Rev. Dr. Seymour, a member of the Presbyterian mission in China for the past 30 years, was shot and killed by Chinese troops at Tsinning, according to word received here today from American refugees stranded in the Shantung war area.

Dr. Seymour was an American.

The information of the shooting was received by the United States legation.

Legation officials were informed that the missionary was shot through the heart on April 16 while Tsinning was being occupied by Gen. Feng Yuh Hiang's army. The town had originally been held by Northern troops.

SLAYING CONFIRMED

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP.)—The Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions received an official announcement of the shooting of Dr. Walter F. Seymour in Tsining by cable from the Presbyterian China Council at Shanghai today.

"Soldier shot Dr. Seymour through the heart," the cable read. "All others in Tsining saved. Will leave as soon as possible."

The board believed the only other missionary in that section, in addition to the Seymour party, to be the Rev. Charles M. Eames, of Jacksonville, Ill.

Nearly 4,500 Ball Games Carded on Local Lots

Baseball still remains the popular pastime of the American boy. More than 3,700 ball games have been scheduled by the Bureau of Recreation for the city playgrounds and in addition there will be more than 600 junior games under the auspices of the public and parochial schools. The baseball season was scheduled to open April 15 but the rain and cold weather had delayed the opening. Only a few games have been played.

SCAIFES BUY HOME IN SHADY AVENUE

NEXT TO R. B. MELLON HOME

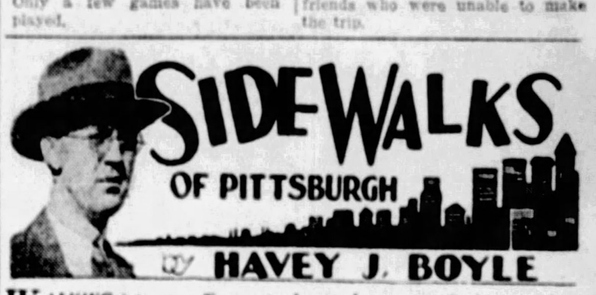
Mr. and Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife have purchased the former A. J. R. Greer residence, 1047 Shady avenue, two doors from Fifth avenue and adjoining the home of R. B. Mellon, for a consideration understood to be in the neighborhood of $150,000. Mrs. Scaife before her marriage last year was Miss Sarah Mellon, only daughter of R. B. Mellon. The house (above) is a brick residence containing 14 rooms on 250x350 feet of ground. It adjoins the homes of C. D. Marshall and Norwood Johnston. It was built by Lawrence Dilworth. According to reports in real estate circles, agreements have been signed and the buyers will take possession soon. It is understood that Donnelly & Everson closed the deal.



WALKING into our office yesterday we began questioning ourself as to whether it is well to eat late at night when we observed sitting in a chair near our office door a young man quite busily engaged in combing his hair. Now seeing a man combing his hair is not such an unusual sight, even in a newspaper office, but when you consider the further fact that this man was holding the comb between his toes you may understand why we wondered whether we had not been a little foolish the night before.

WE FELT no easier, mentally, when after rubbing our eyes and shaking ourself in a sort of shudder we saw the man finish his hair-combing, put the comb in his coat pocket, with the same toes, and then calmly extract a cigaret and a match from his coat pocket and with considerable grace light the cigaret and then flick the match away. All this with his toes.

ABOUT the time that we were expecting to see a few elephants walk into the room, wearing boxing gloves, or a pair of green monkeys, a fellow-reporter whispered that the man with the comb and toes, so to speak, was armless and had learned to do with his toes what most persons use their hands and fingers for.

* * *

THE man in question is part of a local show. He had increased his dexterity to such extent that an enterprising theatrical man had signed him up to show his versatility to wondering audiences. The young man without arms and hands dresses himself, ties his own necktie; and they say he can carve a roast in a fashion that would make experts in such matters envious.

IF OUR request is to be considered at all, which we doubt, we would suggest that such demonstrations be given say about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon when a fellow who has been out late the night before will have pulled himself together sufficiently to be able to stand the shock of seeing a man running his toes through his hair as the rest of us might perform the same ceremony with our hands.

* * *

A LITTLE lady with the same troupe, by the way, standing about three feet high, and having years on her back, we should say, to the number of 35 or so, giggled romantically and delightedly her information that the man with the toes was to be married to the pretty girl standing nearby, the ceremony to take place on a stage, in a day or so.

* * *

ONE thing the bride will not have to worry much about is the darning of her helpmate's socks as, by the nature of things, he must wear socks that have no toes in them. This is quite an item, especially among the better class of citizens who wear socks even in the summer time.

INCIDENTALLY, while on matters domestic, you are overlooking good reading if you missed getting The Sun-Tele cook book. The impression that cook books are only for women is erroneous. We read the thing from cover to cover. It is not so much the idea of discovering new good things to eat as to discreetly tear out certain recipes, with which the little woman may spring on you some night just when you are set for some old stand by. Every husband should read the cook book. In this way, by using scissors or a knife, he may escape those little surprises that come out of the cook books just when a man is hungry.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore M'ELHERIN

Jerry Tells Saxon Mary Is Not the Kind of a Wife for Him

"I GOT it from John. And you know how keen he is for gossip when it concerns Saxon Rhodes. The betrothal cards may be expected any day."

"As definite as that, Sylvia?"

"John thinks so."

Jerry turned white—whiter than a bone. "He'll not marry Mary Pennings," she murmured, tearing an envelope to merciless tatters. "I'll see to that!"

She felt spent with an inner blaze. She went downstairs and closed the door of her room.

She got out paper and pen and began to write, driving the pen wildly. She wrote a brutal, scathing letter. At the end of the second page, she read back. And suddenly to her utmost astonishment she pressed her hands to her face and began to sob.

She lost all control of her emotions and felt that she was gone mad. She had never sobbed like this in her life.

After awhile she was bathing her face and appraising herself with curious scorn. She went to her desk and tore up the letter slowly.

But her resolve remained unshaken. She would prevent Saxon Rhodes from marrying Mary Pennings. She would do this if it were within human power.

"I am really mad," she affirmed quietly, unable to keep that long line of faces—Saxon's face in a hundred different expressions—from passing and repassing in her mind.

She remembered the little-boy way he had come to her after that night in Belvedere when she had so bitterly denounced him. He had come in grinning and eager and sheepish—a hand full of jobs for her. And he said: "Don't you care for me any more, Jerry? You act as though you never loved me."

How humiliated and how deeply wounded when she answered that a woman loves a man only when she looks up to him. She could see the dark, hurt look of his eyes yet.

Suddenly it occurred to her that she had failed him as much as he failed her.

In all these months when he kept coming to see her; when he seemed so anxious that she should still think well of him, she had maintained that faintly derisive, impersonal manner. She had laughed and pushed him with gay ridicule, quietly, definitely, into Mary's arms.

Well—she thought that was the wise way. She thought that was the subtle thing.

No use to show scorn for Mary. A man always distrusts the honesty of the woman who is blackening another.

Unwittingly we give to that other the appeal of the persecuted; all the man in him rushes to the defense of the downtrod. We make him the ally of the woman we defame.

So she had not tried to rival Mary. She had waited. Too long!

"No—it's not too long! It's not too late. I'll go and see him tomorrow. Mary's betrothal cards will never be sent. That's that!"

Instead, Saxon came to Jerry.

CHAPTER LXI.

"O F all the men on the face of the earth, why is it he and he only who makes the very air tingle for me? Why does he seem to fill the room with light?"

He came toward her, mirth in his eyes and that clean, sparkling look that made even his teeth seem extra-scrubbed. She regarded him excitedly.

"You look storm-tossed, Jerry. Why so?"

"A long, sad story, ole dear."

"And you're brown as the woods."

"A wild week in the sun with golf and swimming."

"And loving? I hear Hugh was down. He's extremely persistent, isn't he?"

"Are you curious about Hugh and me, Saxon?"

"Yes, I am. And I'd like to know if you took him out to that hill."

"Why the sentiment for a mere matter of geography?" Suddenly she laughed. "What queer hicks we are! I, too, wished that hill kept inviolate. And I had some wild moments when I feared you were coming down to lead my successor out there."

"I had no intention of going down for the weekend. Among other things I had too much work to do. Why don't you come in and let me show you my plans? I've been waiting for you to ask about them. Why would I lead anyone out to that hill?"

"A romantic spot to make the grand avowal. I hear the deed is done, Saxon. And I suppose I should offer congratulations."

"What did you hear?"

"That you and Mary are to be married."

He colored and clinched his jaws.

But she raced on, guessing that he would hedge if she gave him the chance: "Why the insane optimism, Sacks? Why are you throwing over the father of your country and going in for entangling alliances? It would be encouraging to learn why the blithe bachelor now seeks to become the bored benedict."

"If I marry," said he, drawing a harsh, labored breath, "there'll be no insane optimism about it. I won't go into it expecting ecstasy and lifelong happiness. That's past.

"If I go into it, it's because I'm sick of one-night stands. There's nothing much in the way of variety from one girl of this age to another. And I'm tired of repeating and playing around. And I know beforehand pretty nearly how any affair will turn out.

"If I marry now it won't be with any thrilled expectancy. But because I want some stability to my life; some regularity.

"And as you once warned me when I seemed worth your while to get excited about—if I keep on the way I'm going I'll be that punch-bellied, bald-headed flat-tire you pictured me at the age of 40.

"The gay blade of the twenties has this depressing prospect before him. At 40 he's no better than a phonograph repeating old songs.

"I've no craving to be this kind of hangover from the past to the flappers of 1939. Used and patronized to my face; ridiculed for a whiffy old bore behind my back. . . . the forlorn fate of perennial bachelors.

"Had enough to be Don Juan in rompers, Jerry. I certainly don't aspire to be Don Juan in a wheel chair. Taking it all in all, marriage can do no worse for a man."

"But if you must marry, Saxon, why should it be Mary Eunice?"

"Why not?" said he, watching with narrowed eyes the trembling of her lips. "She's good-looking, attractive, intelligent. She fits in with the kind of life I want. Why not, Jerry? A man may pass up a chance such as that and at 28, never get one-half as good again."

"Oh! You think the crop of lovable ladies is soon to wilt from the earth? And there'll be no roses in next year's garden of love? No more cabbages under the kitchen window?

"Needless alarm, ole dear. Girls are getting better-looking and more intelligent every day. And as our grandmothers might vulgarly rise to remark—though it mixes my metaphors—there's just as fine fish in the sea as ever were caught. And there always will be. Figure it out yourself.

"So there's no mad rush on that account. You're really very young, Sacks, even at 28 plus, to give up the dream of ecstasy. Besides, you're much older now than you'll be a few years hence. Because now you're just fresh from disillusions; just fresh from experiments with life that have a grand little way of proving not mad moments but DRAB ones. And antiquity has no greater old-age than disillusion.

"So why cheat yourself with this kind of a marriage, Saxon? Why tie up with Mary Eunice?"

"What have you against her, Jerry?"

"In herself, nothing. As a wife for you—everything."

"How do you figure that? She's tolerant, charming, well-to-do. Willing to go her way and let me go mine. Pleased with me as I am and not seeking to make me over according to her particular j——"

"If that's what you seek," interrupted Jerry, color sweeping into her eyes, "you're choosing well! If you want a wife who'll give a loud cheerio when she sees you tobogganing 60 miles an hour to pot; if you want some one who'll keep you up till 4 a. m. over a rubber of bridge and feed you Scotch highballs and gin rickeys to keep up your jazz, you're marrying exactly the right girl."

"Why do you say a vicious, unwarranted thing like this, Jerry?"

"It's neither vicious nor unwarranted. She kept you up that night at Phil Cowper's till dawn. And your haggard look would make anyone's heart ache.

Madge and Mary Worried While Awaiting Philip Veritzen's Arrival

I PONDERED Lillian's words many times in the hours which elapsed between the moment of our glimpse of Eleanor Lincoln in the Veritzen limousine and that which brought Philip Veritzen to the farmhouse for the interview he had asked of me and the one I had requested of him for Mary.

"Whatever it is that Phil's up to, it doesn't spell any good times for Mary," she had said, and the more I considered my employer's queer actions the more I agreed with her. I did not base my conclusions upon the incident of the limousine alone, but upon the great man's demeanor toward Mary the night of our welcome home dinner to Lillian and Marion.

That Mary was sharing my mental vigil I knew by the girl's almost feverish color and worried eyes. But when the time of Mr. Veritzen's call drew near Mary dressed herself as carefully as did her name sister of Scots, "for execution."

"I don't know what he'll do to me, but at least the law will keep him from killing me, won't it?" she asked, with a nervous little laugh as she came into my room for my inspection a few minutes before the time of my employer's appointment.

"I will if the law doesn't," I told her with a smile. "So don't worry. Stay here in my room until I call you. I'll go down and see him first."

But I was hardly less nervous than Mary as I went downstairs to wait for the arrival of Mr. Veritzen. I had had two hectic days since the welcome home dinner, for Dicky's temper, always uncertain, had waxed diabolically certain after a second visit to The Larches, from which he returned in high dudgeon. I guessed that Eleanor Lincoln had persisted in her unaccountable refusal to be sketched with the dog, Fedor, in the position which Dicky had wished. I knew the careful planning which he gave to each set of illustrations and could not help a feeling of sympathy for him, even though he vented his choler upon me, finding fault with everything which could possibly be criticized and some things which ought to have been unassailable. Although he made but one or two references to Philip Veritzen, the comments he did voice were so venomously angry that I shrank absurdly from the possibility that the two men might meet again before Dicky's return to the city.

My vanity and my interest would have been intrigued by his open rancor against my employer had I not had the conviction that his resentment had nothing to do with my association with Philip Veritzen, but was excited because of the attentions the great dramatic producer was paying Eleanor Lincoln. Remembering Mr. Veritzen's inexplicable disapproval of Miss Lincoln's posing which he had voiced to me, I wondered if he were responsible for her refusal to pose, then scorned myself for my own absurdity.

But I was relieved when Dicky left for the city on Tuesday morning. I had feared he might stay over until the afternoon and thus meet Mr. Veritzen when that bewildering gentleman should arrive for the talk concerning Eleanor Lincoln which he had requested of me.

Lillian was downstairs on the veranda when I came down and she looked up from her book with a grin which spelled comprehension of my nervousness.

"Well-known stage all set and ditto coast all clear," she said. "Mother Graham is asleep, and Katherine has taken Junior and Marion for a long drive, while I'm little Johnnie on the especial job of restraining Katie's lovely curiosity and propensity for keyholes while old Phil is reading the riot act to Mary and telling you the story of his life? Isn't that his car turning in the yard now? You're just in time. Scoot into the library and I'll have Katie usher him in with the proper genuflections."

FUND DRIVE ON FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

This is "Crippled Children Week" in Pennsylvania.

Throughout the state an appeal is being made for funds to aid 27,000 crippled children within the state.

The Pennsylvania State Society for Crippled Children, working in conjunction with the State Department of Welfare, State Department of Health, State Department of Public Instruction and State Department of Labor and Industry seeks to provide hospital, medical and convalescent care for crippled children as well as to provide education and vocational employment for them.

William H. Robinson, 1002 Park Building, is a member of the executive committee for the Pittsburgh district. Memberships in the society should be mailed to Ritchie Lawrie, secretary, at Harrisburg.

In a statement issued by the society at the beginning of the "drive" for memberships, it was stated that 79 per cent of crippled persons were disabled before the age of 7. Many of these, according to the society, could have been saved by proper care in time.

KAUFMANN PLAYERS STAGING REHEARSALS

ALL HER HEALTH TROUBLES GONE!

Glenfield Lady Tells of Far-Reaching Benefits of Famous Ten Herbs.

"Ten Herbs ended all my health troubles; and, therefore, it is a pleasure to recommend such a splendid preparation," was the statement of Mrs. Walburga Rosenberger, whose address is Box 65, Glenfield, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine.

MRS. WALBURGA ROSENBERGER

"I was troubled with gas and bloating, which showed that my digestion was impaired," Mrs. Rosenberger continued. "Gas would work up around my heart and cause it to palpitate. I had to be very careful what I ate, and eating anything fried or greasy was out of the question. I was constipated, and my liver was sluggish. I lost all ambition and energy, and my nerves were getting on edge.

"I was attracted to Ten Herbs by reading so many local endorsements, and when I learned that it was purely herbal, I did not hesitate to give it a trial. I found Ten Herbs to be just what I needed. It improved my digestion, and now I can eat without fear of misery afterwards. I am no longer troubled with gas, bloating, or palpitation of heart. My bowels are regular, and my liver and kidneys are working the way they should. Biliousness has left me, my complexion has cleared, and my nerves are quiet. Ten Herbs will be the one system purifier and tonic for me in the future, and I am sure that this will be the decision of all who are fortunate enough to learn about this medicine and the fine results that it gives."

Every day local men and women pour out their hearts in sincere words of gratitude for the wonderful relief Ten Herbs has given them. This new herbal medicine is proving a sensation in this city, where it is relieving many of stomach, liver and bowel disorders. Ten Herbs is a splendid spring tonic, as it gives the entire system a thorough cleansing.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Tardiness of Spring Prompts Many Fiancees to Pre-empt Days in June for Wedding Date

FOR a while in March it looked as though June were going to be ignored by the young brides-to-be. One wondered if the younger generation considered June altogether too conventional a month for modern young things to choose to wed in. But, now that spring weather has been so discouragingly tardy, more and more girls are pre-empting June dates. And so another old tradition is saved—that June is a month of brides and roses.

The very latest date in June to be taken is June 5. Piquant Eleanor Vail Lewis, daughter of the William H. Lewises, of Devon road, has named that date for her marriage to Dr. George F. Foster, of the Pittsburgh Athletic Club, son of the William M. Fosters, of Toronto, Canada.

The marriage will take place here in Pittsburgh—in the Calvary Episcopal Church, to be exact. And the hour will be 4:30 o'clock that afternoon.

Eleanor attended the Bennett School, you will recall, and studied drama for a while in the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology. She appeared, I believe, in a number of plays in the Little Theater at that school.

Dr. Foster is a graduate of the University of Toronto. Following their marriage, Dr. Foster and Eleanor will live in Pittsburgh, I understand.

Pittsburgh society goes out of town for other things than golf tournaments and dances. Not infrequently prominent folks will go to New York for a particular play or to some nearby city to hear some opera. A number of Pittsburghers, I hear, are going to motor to Cleveland or go by train to hear the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company. The company will open a week's run in Cleveland, as you know, beginning Monday night. Rosa Ponselle is appearing in "Aida."

Mrs. B. R. B. Townsend, Mrs. Stuart H. Robinson, Mrs. Daniel Nevin, Miss Martha Porter, Miss Henrietta McCleary, Miss Margaret Adair, Miss Katherine Over, E. A. Smith, Charles B. Crow, Jr., and Mrs. J. H. McCrady are among the many planning to hear "Aida."

I wouldn't mind a bit of going to Europe, now, would you? For spring, so far, hasn't been particularly luring. Perhaps the cold weather is hastening the European trips of many folks who usually go abroad later in the season. Mrs. W. C. Dierks and her daughter, Elizabeth, of Edgewood, will sail Saturday from New York on the Duilio for Europe. They will spend three months visiting the different countries. Part of the time they will spend at Cannes, I understand, where Mrs. Dierks' son, Barry H. Dierks, is now staying. For sometime he has lived in Paris, you will recall.

Mrs. Dierks will be back in time, of course, to plan for next winter. For she was re-elected state president at the annual convention of the State Federation of Music Clubs, held in Altoona last week.

Paul A. Nee, chairman of the patron committee of the Duquesne University junior prom to be held in the Hotel Schenley May 4, has announced that the following will be patrons of the event: Elmer F. Layden, head football coach and athletic director; Hugh C. Muldoon, head of the School of Pharmacy; Miss Blanch Munhall, Michael Connelly, A. B. Wright, Joseph P. O'Carroll, dean of the Pre-Medical School; John A. Moran, dean of the School of Accounts, Finance and Commerce.

The Meyer Jonasson & Co. Beneficial Association will hold a dance this evening in Webster Hall with about 500 persons in attendance. A program of special music, entertainment features and novelty dances has been arranged. The association is an employes' welfare organization which conducts various activities throughout the year for the entertainment and benefit of employes.

Mrs. William McMurphy, of Friendship avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Jean Dorothy McMurphy, to John J. M. Krings, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Krings, of South Negley avenue, which took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church. The Rev. Phillip A. Callery officiated. Miss Margaret McMurphy and J. Leo Sheran were the attendants. Following the wedding was a breakfast in the home of the bride's mother for members of the two families. After a motor trip through Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Krings will be at home May 15 on Woodmont street, New Kensington.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Young, of Versailles avenue, McKeesport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Shaw Young, to William J. Cox, Jr., of Baillie avenue, McKeesport, which took place Saturday in Butler with the Rev. William Anderson as officiant.

Mrs. Arthur E. Kegel, of Bryn Mawr road, announces the marriage of her sister, Helen Marjorie Williams, and Fred C. Fenton, of Youngstown, O., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Fenton, of McKees Rocks. Mr. and Mrs. Fenton will make their home in Youngstown. Mr. Fenton is a graduate of Ohio State University.

Members of the girls' bowling league of the Union Trust Company held their annual banquet Monday night in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. Miss Margaret Foster was toastmaster. Margaret Foster was elected president; Barbara Glancy, secretary, and Jane McDonald, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hooper, of Bellevue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Christine Hooper, to Charles L. Noll, of Ben Avon. A fall wedding is planned.

* * *

Mrs. Lewis Wenman Hicks, of "Lowana," Fifth avenue, is in New York for a few days. She is expected back in Pittsburgh on Friday, I believe.

* * *

Mrs. G. R. Gibbons, of Dunmoyle street; Mrs. Louis A. Brenneman, Miss Verna L. Brenneman and Mrs. C. J. Nieman are among other Pittsburgh folks who have been in New York recently.

Miss Alice Orr will sail today for Europe. She will meet her mother, Mrs. Charles P. Orr, in Milan. They will spend the entire summer in Europe, I understand.

Italy has proved most attractive this winter to a number of Pittsburghers. Forsyth Patterson, of Sewickley, is among these.

The Travelers will have their annual outing June 12 and it will take the form of a luncheon in the Highland Country Club in charge of Mrs. E. C. Parker, Mrs. G. A. Wallace, Miss Anna Insley and Mrs. R. S. Everett. For yesterday's meeting in the Congress clubhouse the music was furnished by Mrs. W. J. Harris, who played several piano numbers. Mrs. R. W. Berberich had a paper on Hot Springs National Park, and Mrs. R. C. Harris gave an account of a 90-mile trip from Cody up the Shoshone Canyon into Yellowstone Park.

Mrs. Alfred C. Dickey and Miss Eleanor T. Grier will be hostesses for the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh branch of the Vassar Alumnae Association, which will be held in the College Club Wednesday afternoon. Reports from the representatives to the alumnae council will be heard and officers will be elected. An interesting feature of the afternoon will be the motion pictures taken at Vassar this spring showing the new buildings and views of campus life.

Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison, retiring president of the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club paid her postponed visit to the Oakmont Woman's Club yesterday and gave a talk on her recent trip to Egypt, illustrating it with slides made from photographs of her own taking. Another delightful feature of the afternoon was the music, which consisted of violin solos by Charles Riley, with Mrs. Virginia Brown Wilharm as his accompanist. Mrs. R. W. Dunham, first vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. H. G. Morrow, who will return shortly from California. The nominating committee presented its ticket as follows: President, Mrs. J. H. Alger; vice presidents, Mrs. R. W. Dunham and Mrs. C. F. Blue, Jr.; recording secretary, Mrs. Robert Davis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. A. Dysart; treasurer, Mrs. Paul Farragher.

The tenth and last luncheon of the educational department of the Congress of Clubs will be held May 9 with Miss Elizabeth Baranyi, graduate assistant in the department of education, University of Pittsburgh, and Miss Clara Fetter, of the Hungarian consulate and instructor of modern languages at Pitt, as guest speakers. Miss Baranyi, who taught school in Hungary, is now studying progressive educational institutions. She holds the foreign fellowship offered annually by Pitt. Miss Fetter is a doctor of philosophy from the University of Budapest and is one of the few women in consular service. The Congress educational department has re-elected all its former officers, headed by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller as chairman.

Mrs. William J. Askin has announced the program for the annual luncheon of the Pittsburgh Female College Association Thursday of next week in the Hotel Schenley. Mrs. Arthur B. Sivitter will lead assembly singing of the college song and Mrs. John H. Heiner will give the invocation. Mrs. John A. Wilson, the president, will welcome the guests and the program features will include readings by Mrs. Mary Jones Sherrill and vocal duets by Mrs. Paul Sturtevant and Miss Helen G. Heiner. The receiving line will be formed by the new and retiring officers.

At the annual luncheon of the Crafton Heights Woman's Club in the Seventh Avenue Hotel on Saturday Mrs. Cora Sprung, program chairman, will present Miss Mary Ford, reader, and Miss Mildred Turner, who will give an illustrated nature study talk. Mrs. Grace R. Mackenzie, of the music committee, will introduce Miss Christine Rohm, soprano, who is to be accompanied by Mrs. C. H. Stiles. Reservations are in charge of Mrs. M. H. Black.

An evening of poetry was held by the Pittsburgh Authors' Club last night in the Garden tea room, Miss Mildred West reading from her book of poems, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Vermorcken relating her personal experience in writing and Kenneth M. Gould describing The Scholastic's experiments with "Creative Youth."

Edwin L. Peterson, Jr., of the University of Pittsburgh, will speak on "Current Literature" tomorrow at the meeting of the Housekeepers' Club in the Congress clubhouse. Miss Louise Blankenhorn, soprano, will sing, accompanied by Miss Isabel Dible, and a talk on refrigeration will round out the program. Mrs. J. H. Bricker is chairman for the day and Mrs. Ida M. Howard is hostess.

Reports of delegates to the national convention and of the nominating committee will be made tomorrow at a luncheon meeting of the League of American Pen Women. Election of officers will also take place.

* * *

The April meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, which was held last night, was addressed by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Higginbottom, who is in charge of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Allahabad, India.

Small Parlor Grand
$1900
A model for the home in which there is no space problem. This is the attractive home size, now an instrument of amazing power and depth of tone.

The Baby Grand
$1425
This instrument is small enough for the most limited space, yet it retains that breadth and beauty of tone which a true grand piano ought to have. A very popular model.
For the world's finest piano, the cost is surprisingly small
THE making of a fine piano, as of any other fine thing, involves certain fixed costs. If these costs are reduced beyond a certain point, the product ceases to be fine. . . . Yet more than 70 years' experience in the manufacture of the best pianos has taught Steinway & Sons how to reduce these costs to the safest possible minimum. To them is added a modest profit, and the result is the market price.
The moderation of Steinway prices is a pleasant surprise to those who are already familiar with the incomparable tone and durability of Steinway pianos. There are many styles and prices.

I never saw a whiter wash

than I get with this hard-water soap

REALLY, I think it's marvelous the way our hard water is made soft as rain by Rinso suds. Such creamy suds! They last and last—yet they rinse off in a jiffy and carry all the dirt along.

It was a great surprise to me the first time I saw grimy cuffs and collars rinse spotless—with practically no rubbing. And even stains wash away in Rinso suds.

I don't bother with boiling any more, for Rinso brings clothes from the washer white and sparkling. Now I know why the makers of 32 leading washers recommend this safe, hard-water soap.

My neighbor uses Rinso for tub washing. She says it saves all scrubbing by soaking out the dirt—and so it saves the clothes and her hands, too.

Why don't you try it? Get the BIG package from your grocer.

Guaranteed by the makers of LUX—Lever Bros. Co.

they yelled savagely. This was just what I wanted to see—a fight—five dogs to one leopard.

With gleaming eyes and lashing tail he now crouched, and making a spring to the ground he bounded from dog to dog and then sprang into his tree, when I shot him. He had inflicted terrible wounds on the dogs, one of them dying shortly afterwards from loss of blood from wounds like knife cuts; they were deep and near the neck. The other three dogs were also gashed about the back and body and the wounds looked as if they had been made with a knife.

So rapid was the motions of the brute that one could not tell how he had done so much damage in so short a space of time. For his size he is the most dangerous animal that the world possesses and can kill a man as quickly as he can a dog. His claws are the weapons he uses. And my hunters told me once he jumps on you your chances of life are very small. Fixing his fangs in your flesh, he sucks blood, at the same time rapidly working his hind claws; you are soon torn to death.

LIONS CLUB QUARTET ON RADIO PROGRAM

The Pittsburgh Lions Club Quartet, champion singers of the 1,300 clubs which make up the Lions International, arrives in Pittsburgh Saturday morning to lead the Lions "roar" which, in closing the program of the Lions radio party for the blind at Syria Mosque next Saturday night, will be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific through a network of 39 radio stations. The blind folks of the Pittsburgh district with their attendants will be the guests of the Lions at the Mosque and the public will be admitted by tickets. The completed program announced today includes Harold Bauer, pianist; Anna Case, soprano; Edwin Grasse, the blind violinist, and Milt Gross, humorist.

B&B

end-of-the-month

clearance

tomorrow-one day-and all day

An innovation—with a purpose—devoting one day toward the end of each month, to clearing out—forcefully and finally—every broken lot and tag end of whatsoever sort in every department where there are such.

Advantages are numerous—means no holding or stowaway of merchandise until the end of the season—this way the clearance is made to get the broken lots out of the way of incoming new full lots, all lots being seasonable and desirable, including the clearance items.

Mark down goods in lots too numerous to mention in this space and do justice to them—the items will be brought to the front—out in full view in every department—and indicated by a special green price sign marked "End of the Month Clearance."

Look for the Green Price Signs throughout the store

Some of the prices will be actual cost and less—and all will be low enough to insure the sale on the spot—and further insure that the "End of the Month Clearance" will be established and enthusiastically responded to next month—the month after, and so on.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 25.—(AP.)—Michigan took the lead in the Big Ten baseball race by wresting a 3-0 victory from Indiana yesterday. The game was played on a muddy field.

CARNEGIE, GROVERS IN MEET HERE

By JESS CARVER.

THERE are not many individuals or teams entered in the annual Penn Relays this week end that can look forward to the pleasant prospect of being certain to finish at least second in their competition. Pittsburgh has such a favored outfit, however, the Carnegie Tech mile relay team, which is certain to be one of the two in the technical school mile at 3:30 p. m., Saturday.

How come—? Well, for the simple reason that only Carnegie and Georgia Tech are entered in the race, M. I. T. and Rensselaer Poly having elected not to enter teams this spring. So both the Golden Tornadoes and the Tartans have it soft.

Coach Halferty of Tech picked his team yesterday. It will be composed of McCombs, Flagler, Ashwell and Hughes, who will probably run as anchor man. The men were chosen on the basis of competitive times in 440-yard trial runs. Hughes turned in the best time of 0:52 for the distance.

Geneva, entered in the college mile relay event, will run in a heat with Susquehanna, Seton Hill, Juniata, Franklin and Marshall, Gettysburg and Muhlenberg. Pittsburgh only varsity competition this week-end, will not have a relay team. The Panthers will be represented at the relays by three field men, Welch, Gwinn and Pickard, and Ken Webecan, a sprinter.

Pickard will meet the stiffest opposition of his career in the pole vault, with Carr of Yale, Barnes of Southern California and Bradley of Princeton vaulting against him. Pickard won the event last year.

While the relay team is in Philly Saturday, the remainder of the Tartan team will face Grove City in a dual meet on the Tech Bowl. This will be the first collegiate track and field meet of the season here.

The Layden and Wertz eleven of the Duquesne University football squad will stage a practice football game Friday afternoon on the Bluff gridiron at 2:30. This game will be the climaxing event of the spring training campaign at Duquesne.

The Pitt-W. & J. tennis match scheduled for this afternoon on Schenley courts has been called off according to Panther tennis officials today. Bad weather is said to have left the Pitt courts in poor shape for play.

Pitt and Ohio State net varsities will clash on the Stadium courts Saturday.

WAGNER MAY PRESENT FANS' GIFT TO REGAN

Honus Wagner, baseball's grand old man, will be asked to present a token of the esteem of the players of Pittsburgh friends to Bill Regan, second baseman of the Boston Red Sox, at a testimonial turnout at Fenn Field, Cleveland, Sunday, June 3, when the Red Sox, making their first swing of the season through the western end of the circuit, meet the Cleveland Indians.

A committee of which H. L. Aim of Brookline is chairman is making reservations for the party, which is expected to be upwards of 500 in number. A block of seats will be reserved at the park.

Already a large number of Brookline admirers of Bill have signed up for the party, and many of the fans of the Oakland district, where he began to play ball on the sandlots, are figuring on coming along. Others anxious to see an American League game in Cleveland on this occasion are requested to communicate with Chairman Aim, 326 Brookline boulevard.

200 SCHOOLS FILE SCORES

With returns from more than 200 schools already in, the time limit set by the War Department for accepting official scores in the William Randolph Hearst Rifle Trophy matches among R. O. T. C. units, closes today.

Col. George McD. Weeks, official judge of the contest (Sixth Corps area, Chicago), reports that the targets on hand show remarkable accuracy on the part of the students participating. No announcement will be made of the marks until all the returns are in.

There is greater interest than ever before in the competition this year, owing to the fact that handsome silver shields are being awarded to sectional winners as well as the national trophies for the schools topping the lists in each division.

Col. Weeks expects to have the winners determined by May 1 in order that presentation can be made before the close of the school year.

Shocker Signs New Contract With Yanks

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP.)—Urban Shocker, right-handed pitching star, who "re-fired" from the game in February, has come to terms with the Yankees, officials of the club have announced. It is understood in baseball circles that Shocker signed a one-year contract for $15,000.

PITCHER CHANGES STYLE

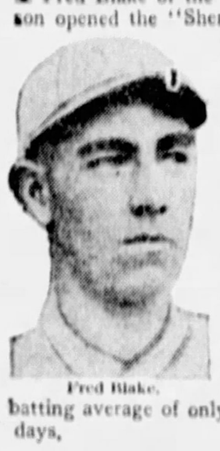
Blake Adds to Fine Record by Beating Bucs —Pitches 17 Straight Runless Innings— Quarantined Pitt Athletes To Be Released Friday and Will Be in Penn Relays Saturday.

IT WAS no disgrace to the Pirates to be mowed down by Fred Blake of the Cubs yesterday, for ever since the season opened the "Sheriff" has been doing the same thing to other clubs and has been pitching the flossiest ball uncovered in either major league.



Fred Blake.

Here is all that Blake has done since they turned him loose at the beginning of the season: In St. Louis on April 14 he beat the Cardinals, 4 to 1, and allowed only eight hits; in Chicago on April 19 he smothered Cincinnati, 13 to 0, and gave up only two safeties, and in Chicago yesterday he trimmed the Buccaneers 7 to 2, yielding nine hits. In three games pitched and won up-to-date, Blake has allowed only three runs and 19 hits and has held the Cards, Reds and Pirates to a combined batting average of only .215. A pretty fair bit of work in 11 days.

BUT that isn't all that the strong-armed "Sheriff" has accomplished. In his initial game, with the Cards as opponents, he did not permit them to score in the ninth inning. Then he pitched a nine-inning shut-out against the Reds, and yesterday he held the Pirates runless in their first seven innings. Blake, therefore, pitched 17 consecutive innings without being scored on.

Fred is one of the pitchers who has made good with a vengenance after being dropped by one or more other clubs. Cincinnati had him first in 1919, but asked waivers on him the following winter and Pittsburgh grabbed him for 1920. He did not break into a game here until the morning event of Memorial Day and later did not live up to his early promise, so he was cast adrift.

THERE is no telling when Hazen Cuyler will pull a rally and turn the joke, but up to today the Pittsburgh pitchers have held him at zero in the batting department. If Kiki had a weakness or two the Pirate gunners and Manager Bush appear to have kept the same in mind, for in the games of Sunday, Monday and yesterday, Cuyler was held hitless in 11 times at bat. Yesterday's failures against Dawson and Brame pulled him below the .200 mark for the season, his record up-to-date being 10 hits in 52 times at bat for an average of .192. The strangest feature of it is that Ki always has ranked as one of the best spring hitters in the majors.

Lee Meadows.

THE quarantine on Pitt's star track athletes will be lifted in time to enable them to compete on the second day of Penn's annual relay carnival in Philadelphia next Saturday.

It will be necessary to send the Panther entrants to the Quaker City in two squads, however.

As is well known Gibby Welch, Don Gwinn and Ed Knobloch were quarantined in the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity house early last week when the illness of Bill Loehr, freshman football player of last fall, was diagnosed as scarlet fever.

THE quarantine will not be lifted until next Friday morning, consequently Welch, Gwinn and Knobloch will not be able to depart for Philadelphia until Friday evening, arriving in time to compete in Saturday's event.

The other track men whom Coach Frank Shea has selected to compete at Philadelphia, and who have not been under quarantine, will leave on Thursday night, and will be on hand for both days of competition. These are Victor Pickard, pole vaulter, and Kenneth Wibecan and Jim McCullough, sprinters.

WELCH took a philosophical view of the situation in discussing it over the telephone.

"Of course it was anything but pleasing to be kept out of that Ohio State meet last week and to be forced to remain in the fraternity house ever since," he said, "but, after all, matters could be much worse. Even if we had not been under quarantine this week, but had been privileged to be 'out,' we could not have done any practicing anyhow on account of the rain. And besides, we shall be able to take part in the second day's program of the Penn meet, as we are to be released Friday morning and can leave Friday night for Philadelphia. Most of the field events in which we are interested in will be held on the second day, so that we'll be on the scene in time."

IT would be expecting too much to anticipate that the Pitt boys would show their best form at Philadelphia after being under quarantine for 10 days, with no chance to practice, but even at that they are pretty certain to give a very creditable account of themselves, judging by the fine work they were doing before being quarantined. Besides, the hopes of Welch and the others of being chosen for places on the American Olympic team will not be dashed if they do not outshine the field in the Penn meet. There are at least two events—the decathlon and the 3,000 meters steeplechase or obstacle race—in which victory will qualify the winner for the finals in the Olympic tryouts, but the big chance will come in the National Intercollegiate Association meet on June 8 and 9 at Chicago, and the I. C. A. A. A. A. grand finale on June at Boston. Welch and his local mates will be "right" on those two occasions and Gibby at least will stand a fine chance of winning a place on the team that will carry the Stars and Stripes into the big track and field portion of the carnival at Amsterdam.

Gibby Welch.

LEE MEADOWS, suffering from sinus trouble and a sore arm in addition, will not be fit to start pitching service for the Pirates as early as has been expected.

Manager Bush planned to take him on the trip to Chicago last Saturday night, and though he finally gave up that idea he figured that at the latest Meadows would be able to take his first turn of the year on the mound in one of the games against the Reds here tomorrow, Friday or Saturday.

HOWEVER, the local physician who is attending Meadows, informed President Dreyfuss yesterday that Lee has not yet completely recovered and that it will not be advisable for him to try to do any pitching for some time to come.

M'TIERNAN DEFEATS GOTHAM STAR

BOSTON, April 25.—(AP.)—After 22 hours of fighting, six of the classes in the A. A. U. national amateur boxing championship tournament reached the quarter-finals stage and the other two divisions were reduced to the semi-finals at dawn this morning.

Boxing was to be resumed this afternoon at 4 o'clock and by tomorrow eight national champions will be crowned and the make up of the American Olympic boxing team probably announced.

Three Pittsburgh boxers remain in the running. They are Andy Andrucci, in the lightweight class; Buck McTiernan, in the welterweight class, on Joe Orsini, featherweight.

BILLICK, MOODY LOSE

Dan Billick, Pittsburgh bantamweight, was eliminated by Pete Mazio, of Cleveland, in a hotly contested bout, and Bob Moody, Negro heavyweight of Pittsburgh, was put out by John Nemislack, of Buffalo, who won the decision.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

CHICAGO, April 25.—The Pirates have succeeded in stopping Ki Cuyler in the present series, but perhaps there is a "penny wise and pound foolish" twist to their methods. It would be much better to see Cuyler hitting up to his known skill and doing all the other things cleverly, if the Buccos were winning the ball games.

CUYLER has played since the season started with a bad hand. He would have had a single yesterday, but Glenn Wright made a sensational bare hand stop of a bounder off his bat, and as Freddie Maguire was on first, the shortstop had an opportunity for a play which he grasped. It was a great piece of fielding.

THE unsportsmanship "dust-off" ball may be one of the reasons why Cuyler has been wanting at the barrier in the three games. It seems apparent to anybody who watches closely that the former Pirate is being "dusted" in the series. When Brame had him in a hole today he threw one that made Cuyler bend double, the ball passing over his back as he fell to the jack-knife position. In justice to Brame it should be stated that he didn't have much on the sphere.

IT IS to be hoped that the "dust-off" practice will not break out seriously when the two clubs meet. It would be only natural for McCarthy's pitchers to inaugurate a reprisal, and that might result in the indefinite injury to some Pirate, as would be the case if Cuyler or any other Cub were struck.

Double Play Kings

BEST OF ALL TIME

Oldtimers in baseball will tell you the greatest double play combination that ever existed was the crack Chicago Cubs' trio—Tinker to Evers to Chance—prior to 1910. Joe has been tinkering around managing minor league clubs for some time and Johnny has dropped out of the baseball picture, while Frank, the old Peerless leader, is dead. They wrote infield history that never will be forgotten.

BEST MODERN COMBINATION

Bill McKechnie, Pittsburgher, who is manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, real contenders for the National League pennant, facetiously says the best double play combination he ever saw was that of the Boston Braves, back in 1913. It was Maranville to Sweeney to the fence, Sweeney being more or less famous as the possessor of a "scatter arm." However, Bill himself has what is generally credited with being the best double-play outfit in the major leagues today in Thevenow, Frisch and Bottomley. The Yankees are fairly good with Koenig, Lazzeri and Gehrig, the Pirates have a coming combination in Wright, Adams and Grantham and the Giants are reputed to be good with Jackson, Cohen and Terry.

PIRATES MUST BEAT ROOT IN FINALE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, April 25.—These pesky Cubs insist on stealing everything they can find in the Pirate larder. Remy Kremer is the only trainer who has been able to make the Bears jump through the hoop. Burleigh Grimes will try to stop their shennanigans this afternoon, and provided the spitball pitcher can accomplish this he will send the Freebooters homeward tonight in much better humor than they are in this morning as a result of another pasting received yesterday.

Frederick Blake, known affectionately in these parts as Sheriff Blake, from down West Virginia way, made the Pirates like it in the third game of the series. Up to the eighth inning of the fracas with the Buccos, no enemy had been able to push over an earned run on the Sheriff, who is the possessor of three unbroken victories, Pie Traynor nicked Freddie for a single with the bases jammed and two out, the hit giving the Bushwackers their only tallies. The score was 7 to 2.

SANDICT BASEBALL

by TOM BIRKS

THE so-called glory of trying to arrange a league schedule is going to cause the president of the Allegheny County League a few gray hairs.

The league president called a special meeting for Tuesday and after plenty of labor spent on the schedule, found that unless there is a change of mind on the part of some of the teams that there will be trouble.

At the session Tuesday were George Hite from Beltzhoover, Hank Daly of Homewood, Harry Yerx of Bellevue and George Falconer from Dormont. The futility of trying to arrange the schedule became known when Dormont, Bellevue and Homewood all wanted Tuesday evening as their home night. Beltzhoover was willing to fall along with the McKinley Park games scheduled for Thursday.

Just how the matter will work out cannot be stated at this time, for if all of the Big Three still insist upon Tuesdays for home nights then the county loop is not going to operate. It will be impossible for the schedule-maker to go any where under those conditions.

Manager Hite of Beltzhoover pulled one of the best deals of the season in the County League during the week when he signed Howard Crandall, the left-hander, who played with Bellevue last season. Crandall was with Homewood in the early part of the season, but left to go with the North Borough team. Then the southpaw beat Homewood by a 1 to 2 score.

Crandall hails from Corry, Pa., the same town that gave Carmen Hill to the Pirates.

Before coming to Bellevue last season Crandall was with the Chester, W. Va., outfit, and also has seen some service with the Rochester club of the International League. Crandall made quite a hit with the Bellevue fellows in the County League race last season, and his presence at McKinley Park will give Hites' club about the best hills fans a little more to enjoy in seeing Beltzhoover repeat.

Dick Gus's crossroads team of the Pennsylvania League will be seen in action at Bellevue Field next Sunday meeting the St. Johns Lyceum nine of the City League. Coach Elmer Smith is working hard to get his proteges in shape for the game and has called a special practice session for tomorrow evening. All players are requested to be on hand. Maltby has been signed by Manager Bill McGrady to take care of the shortfield job.

Bellevue will open the season with Beltzhoover May 6 in a pre-season exhibition game. Both clubs are probably keen on feeling out the opposition and the game should draw well. Both Beltzhoover and Bellevue fans are eager to see the 1928 County League colors.

Judge May Cut Charges

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP.)—The almost complete collapse of the suit brought by Jack Kearns against Jack Dempsey was indicated today when Federal Judge John C. Knox declared he "had in mind throwing out clauses two, three and four in Kearns' charges." These involved more than $500,000 of the approximately $700,000 sought by the boxer's former manager under their old contract.

CLASSIFIES CONTRACT

Judge Knox termed the contract made at Saratoga Springs, August 22 and dated August 3, between Kearns and Dempsey, to satisfy the demands of the New York Athletic Commission, and providing that Kearns, as manager, receive 33 1-3 per cent of Dempsey's earnings, a "personal service contract."

"This contract," said Judge Knox, "is quite unilateral in so far as its provisions are concerned. Under its terms Dempsey is paid $1 a week for three years of his service. And under its provisions Kearns could sit still and do nothing for the entire period of the contract. There is nothing in the contract requiring him to do anything, or to use his best efforts.

"It appears to me that there is nothing in the contract governing acts subsequent to August 3, 1926, the date of its expiration. The Philadelphia fight occurred on September 23, 1926. So far as the contention of Kearns is concerned that Dempsey refused to fight Tunney before the expiration of the contract period, there has been no evidence produced here that Tunney was ready, able or willing to engage in such a bout."

Arthur N. Seger, counsel for Kearns, informed the court that Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, who appeared as a witness Friday, had "run out on the case" (whom had been asked to produce contracts and telegrams relating to the Philadelphia fight.

COUNSEL ARGUES POINT

William Connors, of Kearns' counsel, argued that Kearns only duty under his Saratoga Springs contract with Dempsey was to have engagements for him and that "all money resulting from such engagements" made by Kearns was subject to the one-third provision of the contract.

"Under the court's theory," he argued, "the last six months of the life of this contract would be absolutely worthless. The testimony in this trial is that it takes at least six months to work up a championship fight.

"But it doesn't take that long to arrange theater exhibitions and entertainments provided for in the contract," Judge Knox replied. "And even if it did, when a man makes a contract for a definite period, it is presumed that he will protect himself under the contract for that period. I think you have a good cause of action as regards the exhibition tour of 1925, but not as concerns other issues in the case."

"That takes the heart out of the case," Connors said.

RICKARD IN "JAM"

NEW YORK, April 25.—(INS.)—The New York Athletic Commission announced today it would hold a special meeting Friday to consider what action will be taken against Tex Rickard as a result of the disclosure that the promoter promised "protection" for Dempsey in the matter of a referee if he fought Gene Tunney in New York. It was revealed in court that Rickard telegraphed to Dempsey as follows:

"You would have no trouble choosing your own judges or referee in New York state to insure you against any favoritism."

James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, said:

"Rickard or no one else can promise protection to a boxer, nor promise to smooth the way for Dempsey or any one to pick his own officials for bouts here."

The commissioners hinted that drastic action might be taken.

PIRATES

finale. Root has been trimmed on all of his starts this season and he is likely to be a mean person when he tangles with the Bucs, but our boys will be in no humor for fooling.

The Bruins are partly responsible, it would seem, for the disappointing play of the Pirates since they left San Francisco several weeks ago. The Pittsburgh stars met up with the Cubs in Los Angeles and the result was so chesided that the Buccos do not like to talk about it. Sum up the play of the natural rivals form the starting of the battles in Los Angeles and the figures show the Pirates to have won just one game in eight attempts.

Joe Dawson was unequal to the task of flagging down the frontiersome Bears in the third game of the series. Two circuit swats off the bats of Riggs Stephenson and Lee Hartnett spelled finis for Louisville Joe and his mates. Blake was pitching so cleverly that Dawson had little chance to cop, but the Bears were out to see that the result would not be close.

Ervin Bramie relieved Dawson in the midst of the heavy hitting of the fifth inning. The Jersey City recruit got along fairly well. But the McCarthy clan put the game on ice in this inning.

WILSON STARS

Hack Wilson played a big part in the victory of the home team. Power-House Hack hammered in a run with two out in the first inning and he spanked in another with two out in the fifth. Meantime, Stephenson and Hartnett had cracked out their home runs.

Glenn Wright kept Ki Cuyler out of the base hit column for the third consecutive game by making a thrilling bareband stop in the edge of the leftfield grass. The fact that there was a runner on first base offered Glenn an opportunity for a force play and with the aid of Sparky Adams he was able to make the play, thus spoiling a hit for his former mate.

The whole series to date has been staged under cold conditions, some snow falling yesterday afternoon. It is likely that the fourth and final game will be played with cool weather prevailing.

Moreover, the various base-runners, in the event of an outbreak of rowdy baseball, might hurt basemen in their desire to square accounts.

THE umpires are loathe to act when the pitchers throw at batters. On two occasions last summer I saw the officials warn pitchers. On one occasion it was a Pirate and on another it was a Red flinger who drew the official censure.

This dangerous practice has no part in the sport. No pitcher wants to hurt a batter, but very often the sharpshooters take long chances.

Negroes Gain in Derby

RULEY, Mo., April 25.—(AP.)—Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Oklahoma, holds a 30-minute lead over Peter Gavuzzi, England, in the trans-continental footrace, when they tied with two other runners for tenth place in yesterday's run of 32.4 miles from Waynesville to Rollo, the fifty-second control. Their time was 5:37:50.

Phillip Granville, Hamilton, Ontario, and Eddie Gardner, Seattle, both Negroes, finished in a tie for first for the second successive day. Their time was 4:39:17. They retained fourth and fifth places in the race, though they gained in elapsed time.

NOTES of the BOXERS

PETE ZIVIC boxes Leo (Kid) Roy at Montreal tonight.

Dick Conlon, who retired from the ring some time ago, is back in again. He defeated Georgie Peck in a bout at Altoona Monday night. Terry Lingo of the North Side, managed by Charley Luck, stopped Hal Murray in the fourth round of a preliminary.

Hugh Feeney meets his professional debut in a bout at Pittsburgh Duquesne Garden next night.

Battling Levinsky, who defeated Jim Maloney at Boston, Mass., Monday night, hopes Master Gallagher at Norfolk, Va., tonight.

Phil Goldstein, local lightweight boxer, is resting up in the mountains in New York state.

Jack Herman of Cleveland finally has been selected as Frank Moreno's opponent in a 10-round bout at Alliance, O., tomorrow night. Johnny Kilbane had been considered for the assignment.

Jack Zivic and Luke Carney were in town today following their return from Chicago, where Jack defeated Jack McCarthy Monday night and Carney seconded him. They will leave tonight for New York. Zivic visited over his victories over Jack Kaiksh and McCarthy within eight days and he felt better than ever and believed he was regaining his old form.

Are Small Plants Doomed? Trend Today Suggests "No."

By B. C. FORBES

IS THE popular notion that all kinds of business in this country are destined to pass into the hands of a limited number of gigantic organizations wrong?

Is there going to be a chance for smaller and moderate-sized concerns enjoying capable management?

I'm inclined to think there is.

QUITE some time ago I thought I foresaw the coming of a time when more and more American families would want non-standardized, distinctive, often hand-made articles. My reasoning was, that as more and more people became well-to-do or rich, they would spend money on things of distinction, things different from those owned by people less well off. Women are especially fond of acquiring possession of the "exclusive" type.

The trend in this direction appears to have set in.

YOU may have noticed that Americans have been paying unparalleled prices for paintings, sculpture, manuscripts and art objects of all kinds in Europe and that at the sale of the late Judge Gary's pictures, rugs, sculpture, etc., the other day, unheard of prices were eagerly paid. That is only one indication.

Department stores and other retailers have been complaining that their sales have not been satisfactory. But one constantly hears of "specialty" shops which are making money as never before. Products of new design often are snapped up eagerly—the first instance that comes to mind is the sudden vogue of fancy overshoes and anklike footwear for women. The manufacturers who first hit upon zippers were overwhelmed with orders, running into the millions.

WHY did the sale of the old Ford car fall off so seriously?

One reason was that families came to regard the possession of "only a flivver" as a badge, not of wealth, but the reverse, as a "cheap" article, carrying no coveted distinction.

On the other hand, consider the extraordinary demand created by other automobile manufacturers who brought out cars of novel style. Chrysler's success has been phenomenal. A few years ago, there was no Chrysler car, but today his sales rank third in the whole industry. General Motors, sensing the public appetite for cars that were "different," drastically remodeled its Chevrolet, brought out its brand new Pontiac line and also created its La Salle, with profitable results in each case. Other makers have acted similarly.

NOW we come to another important factor bearing upon the relative advantage and disadvantage of huge organizations and smaller organizations.

The most conspicuous example of the inflexibility of a gigantic company has been furnished by Ford. This mammoth enterprise, wedded to making one fixed product for years, when it found itself compelled to make a radical change, proved totally unable to readjust its functioning within a period smaller concerns would have regarded as reasonable. The startling truth is that it will have taken Ford more than an entire year, after having stopped production, to get into full production.

BY way of contrast take other motor manufacturers. General Motors, although far exceeding the Ford business in magnitude, is not grooved to one product; it is not dominated by one man; it consists of a score of different "units," each operating on its own, with only general supervision from the parent organization. Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and other G. M. plants have demonstrated their ability to bring out new models without suspending production for months. Exactly the same thing has been achieved by other manufacturers having less production than Ford and having been less wedded to one standardized product.

APPARENTLY, as soon as anything becomes commonplace, it loses its appeal.

Take our old-established New England cotton mills. Many of them have been doing very poorly—lately they have been resorting to wage-cutting. Nevertheless, several enterprising manufacturers, by switching most or part of their looms to novelties, have done exceptionally well. The larger the plant, the longer it has been operating on one product, the less ready it is to change quickly with changing tastes.

The smaller, younger, more alert concern, on the other hand, is on tip-toe every moment, keen to switch its activities into whichever new channels of outlet open up. It accepts the fact that if it is to survive it must be capable of moving quick, of seeing and seizing new ideas, of instantly giving the public what it wants, rather than doggedly sticking to the manufacture of old lines no longer popular.

OTHER phases of this important subject may be discussed later.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, April 25—(AP)—Bullish influences overcame early hesitation in the curb market today and prices moved upward. Fear inspired by uncertainty over the credit situation seemed to have been dispelled over night and virtually every group was active and strong with the utilities leading the advance.

The American Superpower issues, Northern States Power A and Massachusetts Gas moved to new highs, the latter showing a 3 point gain. Electric Bond and Share continued to sag.

Motor and accessory shares were strong. Borg & Beck gained more than 3 points, Hudson, Motor Truck and Marvel advanced to new highs and Studebaker was a point higher. Stutz Willys-Overland, however, was under pressure, dropping 7 points.

Shattuck Denn again reached a new high under heavy buying inspired by announcement the company's Denn mine had struck a rich ore. Some of the chain store issues also were strong, Safeway gaining 3 points and Sanitary Grocery. Silica Gel, St. Regis Paper, Simmons, Baxter Laundry A and Mengel reached new tops. Pittsburgh and Lake Erie was strong in sympathy with the rails on the "big 4" list gaining more than 2 points. Hazeltine, Italy, Canadian Marconi, Marconi Wireless of England, Columbia Graphaphone and Allied Chemical extended their gains of yesterday.

The oils and pipe lines were irregular, Darby Petroleum, Participating Prairie and a few other oils declined, but most of the Standard Oil group, Penn Mex Fuel and International Petroleum made small gains.

On Used Car Sales
1. Every used car is conspicuously marked with a price in plain figures, and that price is the price at which sales are regularly maintained.
2. All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.
3. Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used. It is assumed that the car has not been damaged in the meantime.

We have 25 cars that we will sell in the "As Is" condition, price ranging from $75.00 to $250.00. All makes and models, and five days free trial on any one.

BUGS BAER Says

RY FORD'S interview with Lloyd George resulted in the ultite biting the consumer.

Henry started in by unloading some mass production on , but Lloyd not only evaded the interrogations, but also launched an educational inquisition of his own.

After the informatory catechism was over, Hank wiped the perspiration from his crown fenders and said, "I never saw a man in my life who could ask so many questions."

We don't know how Hank answered Lloyd's puzzles, but if he ran true to the nodding education of the average American magnate, Lloyd never met a man in his life who could answer so few.

Our diplomats could have told Hank that asking questions of Lloyd George is engaging in duet with the moon. Hank wouldn't be the first man who -shouldered carrying coals from Newcastle.

Primary Result Shows Voters Ignoring Duty

So far as casting the vote is concerned, the spring primary is over.

Little interest was shown by citizens of this community.

But when November comes, most of us will be overflowing with the patriotic fervor that attends the process of "saving the country," and will be whooping it up for our favorite candidates.

The fall election, nevertheless, will lack in importance compared to the primary of yesterday. The men who will aid in the selection of national candidates were chosen yesterday. And yet many thousands ignored the matter of having their say as to whom should be the men whose choice they must approve.

There was some excitement in districts where there were local contests, but these were comparatively few and a most important primary passed as if it were nothing to be concerned about.

Thousands of voters yesterday ignored their plain duty.

Help Little Cripples By Answering Appeal

This is crippled children week. It marks the special endeavor of the Pennsylvania State Society for Crippled Children to arouse interest in the plight of the little cripples and the possibility of correcting their deformities, caring for them and making them useful members of society.

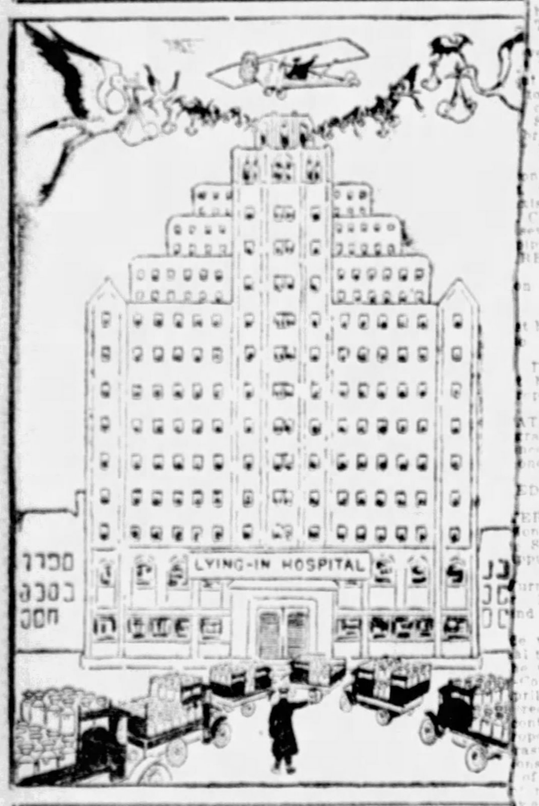
According to surveys, 79 per cent of crippled persons were disabled before they were 7 years of age. Because of lack of proper examination, proper treatment, many disablements become permanent. Properly corrected in time, that could have been avoided.

It is to remedy this situation that the Society for Crip[pled] Children makes an appeal for financial support. It is an ap[peal] that should commend itself to the charitable. Donations [and] membership fees are the income of the society, which worl[ks in] co-operation with state departments of health, welfare, inst[itu]tion and labor and industry.

It conducts clinics and surveys and aids hospitals dev[oted] to the care of crippled children. It lists among its men[ber]ship persons in all parts of the state, William B. Robinso[n], Pittsburgh, being one of the directors.

You can help to make crippled children week a succes[s].

There Are WORSE Homes
The Hospital Baby Gets a Good Start



"I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER THE HOUSE WHERE I WAS BORN."

Millions of old-fashioned Americans, able to remember before moving pictures and big headlines made reading necessary," know by heart the old poem by Thomas H[ood] beginning:

"I remember, I remember,
The house where I as born, ,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn;
It never came a minute too soon
Nor brought too long a day."

The above ingenius picture made for the Survey by E. Underwood, is humorously conceived, but it has a serious, important meaning.

A well managed "Lying-in Hospital" is an excellent landing place on this earth for any baby. Those wagons in the picture are carrying a PASTEURIZED CLEAN MILK.

Babies that the storks are delivering on the roof are handled on their arrival by nurses that know enough to wash out their eyes and otherwise give them the right start. For all but the very rich, a well prepared maternity hospital is the best CITY TERMINAL for new babies. And many of the very richest mothers go to hospitals when their babies are born.

A room with a window where the sun comes "peeping in at morn," is romantic. But the percentage of baby mortality is high, and so is the percentage of scientific ignorance in the old-fashioned cottage.

HOMAGE to another hero of the sea—Capt. Landy, of the liner Montrose.

His ship was in a fog. Suddenly two icebergs loomed, coming together, with no room to pass between. If caught in the giant pincers the ship would have been crushed—another Titanic disaster.

Fitness for command is proved by quick and right decisions in emergencies. Captain Landy acted instantly. He steered his ship straight at the smaller berg, split it in two and escaped with minor damage.

Tales that are Told

Snappy

A MAN, suffering from an excess of stimulant and tottering perceptibly, arrived home as the clocks were striking three.

After carefully removing his shoes, he tiptoed softly to his door.

He slipped the key in noiselessly and was half-way down the hall when he upset a goldfish bowl, causing it to fall with a mighty crash.

His wife, hearing the commotion, appeared at the head of the stairs and called sharply:

"John! What are you doing?"

"I'll teach these bloomin' goldfish to snap at me!" he muttered.

Not for Him

THE minister had just married an elderly and rather dour Scot to a woman considerably younger than himself, and after the ceremony he remarked to the bridegroom:

"Well, Jock, I suppose you'll be going for a honeymoon now?"

"Honeymoon?" echoed the other. "What's that?"

"Oh, you know!" laughed the clergyman. "A little trip somewhere together before you settle down to married life."

The bridegroom shook his head morosely.

"Na, na!" he said. "I dinna hold wi' gallivantin' about wi' a strange wumman."—London Tit-Bits.

A Fair Question

"I WONDER," said Legget, "why Tomlinson changed the name of his new bungalow?"

"Changed its name?" repeated his friend. "Surely not. He was rather proud of it, because he'd thought it out all by himself. It was called the 'Nutshell,' wasn't it?"

"That's right," said Legget; "all the same, it's altered."

At this point a third man spoke.

"Tomlinson," he said, "got tired of that name because small boys used to ring the bell and ask if the 'kernel' was in."

Toddler's Menu

"HOW are you feeling today?" asked the doctor.

"Not at all well."

"Humph! Did you take the medicine I prescribed for you?"

"Yes."

"Ah, yes—and the diet? I think I told you to eat only such food as could be easily digested by a three-year-old child. Did you follow my instructions?"

"Yes, doctor. I ate two handfuls of mud, a piece of orange peel, a boot button and a couple of cigaret ends!"

What a Memory!

HE WAS rather absent-minded, and his wife tied a piece of cotton round his finger to remind him to get his hair cut.

On his way home he noticed the cotton and entered a barber's shop.

"Yes, sir?" said the barber, a puzzled note in his voice.

"Eh? Oh, yes, cut my hair, please."

"Certainly," replied the barber, "if you wish it, but you won't mind my mentioning the fact that I cut it at lunch-time today, will you?"

New York Day by Day
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 25.—Loneliness is said to be responsible for the infinite variety of collectors in New York. Almost every other man or woman is collecting something. A cartoonist has his studio walls covered with cigaret pictures, so popular during the Lillian Russell period.

One insurance executive with the growth of the chain cigar store began collecting discarded wooden Indian signs. He filled a small warehouse with them at a trifling cost, and whereas they were regarded as so much junk, they are now of amazing value.

The broad-browed gentleman who began collecting the old-time five-and-ten-cent novel thrillers, found the idea was so impresisve they achieved an "exhibition" at the New York Public Library. Some of the penny-dreadfuls have been sold for as high as $500.

Another connoisseur has taken up the collection of the first editions of the gay little tabloids. The most valued is that of the saga of Peaches Browning and her illustrious Prince Charming. A runner-up is the tabloid version of the Snyder-Gray murder trial, with its stolen photo of Ruth leaping forward to the first shock in the chair.

These have been expensively bound and their value mounts. A Park avenue bachelor has a small room filled with every variety of shaving brushes. He is a world traveler and has picked them up in every port. One has a handle encrusted in diamonds, the property of a Hindoo potentate.

A hotel keeper has a collection of restaurant menus from the smudgy-inked manifestos of the Bowery "dirty spoons" to the gold embossed on vellum that graced a banquet where the Prince of Wales was guest of honor.

A pipe collection of a railroad magnate is reported to have set him back $5,000, and he has never smoked. With prohibition came a craze for collections of oddly-blown liquor bottles. There is a shop on upper Broadway dealing exclusively in such treasures.

An imported mouth wash with a distinct flavor of anisette is being hawked by bootleggers who, of course, change the label and color it. The dentrifice retails at a dollar a bottle, but the bootleggers ask and receive $10.

But the hot liquor item of the season concerns a report a group of wealthy Long Islanders have imported a famous Scotch distiller at a salary of $20,000 a year.

Broadway, ever jealous of its ladies, has constantly frowned on those who "cut in" on dances. The method has been responsible for many black eyes. Young men from other cities where the custom is a fixed one are quite flabbergasted when a request of this sort is met with a stony glare. Broadway has no use for a stag. If he cannot find a lady for the evening, it is assumed there's something the matter with him and he does not deserve one.

An open bouffe touch came to West Fifty-seventh street yesterday afternoon. A long-bonneted caramel and gray car with a half-canopied body drew up in front of a shop. A chauffeur in caramel uniform opened the door, and out stepped a Lilliputian, swinging a cane and puffing at a big cigar.

It was Sophie Tucker, I believe, who, when annoyed by a slightly hand-cuffed audience in vaudeville, stepped into the wings to find Singer's midgets waiting to go on. "It is tough enough," she complained to the stage manager, "to face an audience like that, but to make it a perfect day here I am knee deep in midgets."

Speaking of "tough audiences," the one mostly feared by the traveling trouper is the first night crowd in Cincinnati. Boston is second on the list of "tough spots."

The Church Quarrel
By DR. FRANK CRANE

Men have always fought and some say they always will. But if there is one place where there should be no fighting it is in church.

Fighting is bad anywhere. Wars between nations are wasteful and foolish. Under the influence of supposed patriotism thousands of young men are slaughtered over a dispute that in almost all cases might have been settled in some other way. Statesmen that are very careful to preserve the resources of their country seem sometimes to be very careless with the real power of their country, which is its man power. Men meet to kill and maim one another simply because their governors have quarreled.

Colton says, "Princes sometimes need wars, but peoples never."

Industrial wars are almost as bad as national ones. Just stop to think about it and you will see how silly it is for people, all of whom are engaged in production, to fight one another. Their interests are the same and upon the prosperity of their work depend their profits. They imperil those profits because of personal pique. Strikes and lockouts are a poor way to get justice.

Family quarrels are often unavoidable and oftentimes the intimacies of personal intercourse result in a clash of personalities.

But church quarrels are the most deplorable. Yet singularly enough they are often the most bitter.

I was recently a witness to a church quarrel in which one faction was opposed to the administration of the pastor, and in order to oust him brought forward the most shameful accusations against him, accusations that never would have been dreamed of in the affairs of a club or lodge.

What do men seek to gain by a conflict in the church, after all? They would gain a temporary victory connected with the administrations of the affairs of the institution. But when they have gained it how much are they advantaged?

They have satisfied their own personal rancor, but have defeated the ends for which the church was founded. For the church is essentially a peace maker. It is a division of the army of the Prince of Peace. It represents the truth that the world can only be advanced by co-operation and conciliation and can only be held back by dissension.

It would seem that in all church quarrels if the opposing parties fully realized the spirit of their Master and that spirit which suffers all things and endureth all things, that most excellent spirit of charity to which St. Paul alludes, there would be no quarrels.

Deal in Futures

A WALL STREET dictionary would define a deal in futures as the buying or selling of stock, grain, provisions or other things to be delivered at a future time.

Pathos plays her star role when she appears as penury-stricken Old Age staring tear-eyed into the future.

The foil of Old Age is the hag, Poverty, and the stage is set in true Oliver Twist style with the ghost of Fagin in the wings and impecunious jetsam and flotsam slouching about in the shadows.

Let no one so far forget the whims of Fortunatus as to fling barbed taunts at the pathetic unfortunates whom Victor Hugo calls "Les Miserables." With the capricious shift of the weather vane many a man has found his chattels under the sheriff's ruthless hammer.

But aside from the ill-starred worthies there is a ragamuffin parade of improvident prodigals who are entitled to as little lachrymal sympathy as a bankrupt bootlegger or a highjacker on the rocks.

They are the near-sighted folks who never deal in futures. Like the Israelites on the 40-year detour they gather only enough manna for the day. There are no storehouses or granaries on their premises.

A child is a future — the surest thing in all the listed stocks in the world's exchange. When Franklin said, "Dump your purse into your head," he was addressing youth. Were his audience parents the adage would have advised dumping the pates into the head of the child.

Lurking in the shadows down along the western hill of life there is a ghoulish specter called loneliness, and many a feeble pedestrian to the celestial city has been set upon by that ruthless bandit and robbed of a lifetime accumulation of joy.

A little investment in children may be cashed in on the western hills and used to clear away the bandit-infected shadows. Indeed, in old age a son becomes a son and a daughter a resplendent moon of night.

Education is a gilt-edged future and all the bears in the pit can't depreciate it. Such stock climbs by many points every year and provides a competence better than government bonds.

The United States Bureau of Education is responsible for the statement that with no schooling six in a million attain distinction; with elementary schooling 25 to the million; with high school education 623 to the million; with college training 5,758 to the million. Good stock!

Kindliness is a safe future. Get as many shares as you can at your earliest convenience. It has the foundation of many of the world's great fortunes.

When you deal in such futures you are not guilty of stock gambling.
